ADMITS KILLING INDIANA GIRL

THE FOX RIVER VALLEY! IT'S A MIRROR OF LIFE!

A City Rubs Elbows with Ages There.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

It is not necessary to go far afield to touch again the hem of nature's healing garment. In Chicago's front yard the diamond-flashing sun dance of the lake is spread out in sky-blue beauty. Its back yard has a belt of green and wooded trails connecting with the wild dune and shore country north and south.

Back of this, in an hour's ride from the loop, is the Fox river valley and its chain of lakes, where the ordered economy of farm and village, vacation resort and week-ending city dweller rub elbows with a world that is just emerging from the postglacial stage, a world of wild grasses and swamps.

Evolution Gets in a Pocket.

Here one may follow the rippling wake of the muskrat as it swims across a pond on its evening chores, watch the majestic sweep of the wings of the haughty crane as it flies away from its evening watch tower in a secluded bend, count the turtles sunning on a log in the river and wonder if they are the cousins of the genus Trionyx, a 40 million year old family, that inhabit this region, and what sort of a pocket evolution has gotten into any way, when you consider the turtle and the cockroach and man.

The Indian, the buffalo, bear, and beaver have gone from this country since Father Marquette and the trader Joliet paddled up this river 266 years ago, but the essential scene in the swamp and lake country remains much the same in many spots. There are belts of slough and marsh like the Siberian tundra, a country of floating islands like the gardens of Xochimilco in Mexico, algæ and pond life that typify the story of life's evolution, rooted water lilies, even the lotus flower, which has been wrought into sacred history of Egypt and India for thousands of years.

A Pageant of the Wildwood.

There is a camping place near the famous Grass lake lotus bed. Not a house in sight. Miles and miles of solitary pasture, sandy ridges left by the glaciers, a quiet pond of white lilies around the bend, cows coming down out of the woods to drink, a few sheep, a bullfrog calling imperiously, a vesper sparrow singing, brilliant airplane beetles on mysterious journeys over the water, the sound of a fish rising to a spent fly, the scolding kingfisher, the sound of a dove mourning in the woods. That is all, to a limited human vision.

Below this larger world there is an infinite gradation of worlds. There is a delicate, perfect balance in nature. We may watch ourselves evolving from the dim and lowly plant life swarming in these back waters, which has the secret of fixing the energy of the sun's rays, up through the caddis worm, the snail, the crayfish, the turtle, the minnow, the reptile.

Nature Takes to Wings.

We take to the air at last in bug and beetle, damsel fly, dragon fly, May fly, flower in the beauty of the lilies or the swamp rose, sing with the hermit thrush and the oriole. All these and many other manifestations are here, the meadow lark, the purple martin by the thousands, the little sandpiper, the swallows that take their meal from the insects in the air. You may see a heron, and there is always the robin with the red breast, abused, according to an old legend, by the prick of a thorn in Christ's crown. There are willow shaded spots along these channels and the river where one may sit all day and fish and dream and see no sign of man's intruding civilization save a few fishermen drifting by.

One may travel for a week on this river, which flows through the chain of lakes, or sit by a pond as Thoreau did and perhaps find as much. There are also beaches and picnic places, where people unload by the truckload and find one tree to camp under for the day, and there are taverns and beer gardens and much of the Beer Barrel Polka atmosphere. Each to his likes is the rule. Thousands live in this back yard and let the rest of the world alone, content in the run.

200 Men Fail in Search, but Blackie Finds Twins

Astoria, Ore., July 23.—(AP)—Blackie, a pet mongrel dog, is on extra rations at the Clay Agee home. While 200 men beat through the Nehalem river wilds yesterday seeking Nancy and William Agee, 3 year old twins missing for more than 24 hours, Blackie led two WPA workers and a miner to the children's rescue. The twins, found under a huckleberry bush about 2 miles from their home, were hungry and tired, but unharmed.

COUNTRY CLUB WORKER DENIES RAPING VICTIM

Strangled, Drowned Her, He Says.

Attica, Ind., July 24 [Monday].—[Special.]—Tom Boyce, young groundskeeper at the Harrison Hills Country club, confessed early today that he killed Elizabeth De Bruicker, 11 years old, Friday afternoon, authorities announced here. The child's body was found in a shallow grave on the golf course Saturday afternoon.

Tom Boyce.

Boyce has not signed a written confession, but made a verbal statement, it was announced, in the barracks of the state police at West Lafayette. Present were Prosecuting Attorney R. C. Fenters of this [Fountain] county, Deputy Sherif George Keller of Fountain county, and State Policeman Robert Bowman. State Policeman Paul Rule also heard parts of Boyce's story, it was said.

Avert Possible Mob Attack.

After the confession Boyce was taken to the Marion county jail at Indianapolis because of fear of mob violence in Fountain county, it was announced. Prosecutor Fenters said Boyce will be kept in the Marion county jail until his case is presented to the September grand jury.

While there have been no threats of violence against Boyce, according to authorities, this community has been deeply stirred since the discovery of the little girl's body. Shortly after Boyce's arrest Saturday night a crowd estimated at 300 persons milled about the city jail, and the prisoner immediately was removed through a side door and spirited to Indianapolis.

Denies Raping Victim.

Boyce stoutly denied that he had raped Elizabeth, according to authorities. They quoted him as saying he met her on the golf course, engaged her in conversation, and made advances to her. Then she told him she was bleeding, according to the announcement. Boyce was quoted as saying he became so frightened that he lost his reason, strangled the little girl with her sash, and then held her head under the water of a nearby pond until she ceased to struggle. Her shoes, for which police have been searching, were thrown into the pond, he said.

According to the announced confession, he threw her body into a shallow ravine and kicked dirt over it with his shoes. Shovel marks which were found at the scene were made by him on an earlier occasion, Boyce said.

Finding Basket Brings Story.

Authorities attributed the break in Boyce's denials of the slaying to the fact that Elizabeth's sewing basket was found last night near the spot where her body was discovered. On it were found numerous fingerprints, according to authorities. Inside were a bloodstained handkerchief and the child's underwear. It was announced that when Boyce confessed he knew that the sewing basket had been found, but had not been told of the fingerprints, which have not yet been identified. Prosecutor Fenters said Boyce evidently believed that the basket would enable authorities to identify him as the killer.

Boyce had been subjected to a lie detector test at Indianapolis, but the result was not announced. His confession forestalled a second test, which had been decided on.

3,000 File Past Body.

Elizabeth, pretty daughter of Peter De Bruicker, a prosperous farmer living east of town, vanished last Friday after attending a 4-H club meeting here. She failed to keep an appointment to meet her elder sister at the country club pool for a swim.

Searchers looked for her all Friday night and until early Saturday afternoon in the environs of this town of 3,700.

More than 3,000 persons filed past the girl's casket at an undertaking establishment. The funeral will be held this morning.

Boyce, who is 26 years old, is married and the father of three small boys. Three years ago, officials say, he was given a suspended sentence for annoying a girl 9 years old.

Killer Crashes Door; Fires as She Leaves Bed

Benton, Ill., July 23.—[Special.]—Awakened by crashing glass from a sleeping porch door, Mrs. Nancy Gore, wife of Dr. George W. Gore, was shot to death this morning when she stepped out of bed. The killer fired five bullets into her body. He then ran to an automobile parked a block away and escaped.

Dr. Gore told police Chief James Mundell he could suggest no motive for the killing. He said he had considerable money concealed on the porch near his bed, but the slayer did not attempt to enter.

The surgeon told Chief Mundell he was awakened when some one knocked a pane of glass out of the porch door. He said his wife, who had been sleeping on the side of the bed nearest to the door, arose at the sound of the breaking glass and was moving toward the door when the first shot struck her.

Telephones for Police.

Fearing to turn on a light because he would be an easy target for the killer, the doctor said he rolled off the bed and crept into the house and telephoned for police.

Neighbors told police they were awakened by the shots and heard Mrs. Gore scream. They looked out windows and saw a man running from the rear of the Gore home and across a garden to an automobile parked about a block away. Police found footprints in the garden.

Mrs. Gore was the doctor's secretary for ten years before their marriage two years ago. She was 45 years old, twenty years younger than her husband. The mother of Dr. Gore's son, George, 30, and of a daughter who lives in South America, died more than three years ago.

The home in which the killing took place was built by Dr. Gore a short time after his second marriage.

Practices in Several Towns.

Dr. Gore is a widely known surgical specialist. Besides operating a hospital in Benton, he has an office in Cape Girardeau, Mo., and a regular practice in Mount Vernon, Harrisburg, Eldorado, and other southern Illinois towns. At one time he had an office in St. Louis.

The doctor's son lives in Cape Girardeau and has charge of the office there.

When Sherif Ed Powell of Franklin county and Chief Mundell went to Cape Girardeau today to look in Dr. Gore's office for possible clews to the killer and notify his son that his stepmother had been killed, they learned young Gore and his wife had left Cape Girardeau yesterday morning for a week-end outing. Friends were unable to say where they had gone.

An inquest into the slaying of Mrs. Gore will be conducted here at 6 p. m. tomorrow.

BRITISH CABINET MAN BARES PLAN TO 'BUY' PEACE

Admits Laying Deal Before Hitler Aid.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 24 [Monday].—Robert Spear Hudson, secretary of the British overseas trade department, revealed in a statement published in London this morning that he was the minister behind a scheme to lend a vast sum of money to Germany to buy off the Nazis and thereby prevent them from starting a war in Europe.

Robert S. Hudson.

The unofficial peace offer which he outlined to Dr. Helmuth Wohlthat, Adolf Hitler's chief trade envoy, at a secret meeting in London last week, called for the cooperation of America and other countries in a bid for world economic and political appeasement, Hudson disclosed.

Reports to Chamberlain.

Although London's official circles sought to repudiate any knowledge of the scheme over the week-end, the trade secretary insisted he had reported to Prime Minister Chamberlain on his talk with Wohlthat.

The affair has created great excitement in European political and diplomatic circles. Chamberlain is expected to make a statement in the house of commons today or tomorrow in reply to demands of the Labor opposition for an explanation. While it seems likely the prime minister will disown the plan, diplomatic observers suggested the project could be fitted into the principles of British policy as announced by government spokesmen from time to time.

Points of Plan Outlined.

The plan worked out at Hudson's meeting with Wohlthat contains five main points:

1. Hitler to be told that Britain will resist any attempt to dominate Europe by force.

2. Britain and her allies would see that Germany got a fair deal, including access to raw materials if Hitler returned to the path of peaceful diplomacy.

3. Aid to be given to Germany to switch industry from a war to a peacetime basis.

4. Friendly cooperation in world markets between Britain and Germany.

5. Germany to agree to arms limitation, if not disarmament, and to withdraw from the former Czecho-Slovak republic.

5 Billion Dollars Mentioned.

Parliamentary quarters in speculating about Hudson's future suggested his position in the government has been compromised by the disclosure of his talk with Wohlthat.

According to British press reports, Hudson dangled the prospect of a 5 billion dollar loan before Hitler on the condition that Germany take the lead in disarmament.

In a brief statement published in the London press this morning Hudson said:

"I met Dr. Wohlthat at his own request, conveyed to me by telephone through the German embassy in London.

Entirely Unofficial, He Says.

"Reports of the conversation which took place between us are incomplete. The discussions were quite unofficial and I made it clear to Wohlthat that any suggestions I put forward were made in my personal capacity and in no way were authorized as a statement of government policy or opinion.

"The following day I reported fully on the conversation to the prime minister."

Hudson, in a more detailed pronouncement in the Daily Express, revealed that his conversation with Wohlthat touched on the part America might be induced to play in framing a general settlement.

"Wohlthat and I tried to envisage the tremendous possibilities of peace."

Six in College Party Buried by Snow Slide

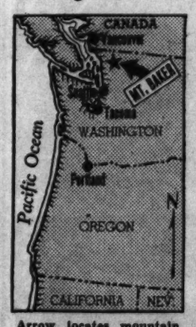
Glacier, Wash., July 23.—[Special.]—Roaring down the steep side of Mount Baker late yesterday, an avalanche struck a collegiate party of twenty-five mountain climbers, killing at least two of them. Four others are missing and believed to be dead, buried in a crevice under tons of snow and ice.



Arrow locates mountain where slide occurred.

Searchers found the bodies of a man and a girl this afternoon, and when they had not recovered any of the others at nightfall hope for their lives virtually was abandoned.

"They have been buried for twenty-four hours and could not possibly have survived," said a forest ranger.

Starting from a precipice known as the Roman Wall, half an hour's climb from the 10,750 foot peak, the avalanche, 800 yards long and 100 feet wide, rushed down upon the climbers before they had a chance to get out of its path.

12 Girls and 13 Men.

Twelve girls and thirteen men, summer students and faculty members from Western Washington College of Education, were in the party. Climbing in groups of three to six, they were moving around a high, rocky wall when the avalanche crashed down upon them.

Only three of the party escaped the slide. Others were sent sprawling down the mountain side. The girl and the man who were killed and four who are missing were hit by the full force of the slide. Others in the party lost sight of them when the avalanche slid into a wide crevice. Because two bodies already have been recovered it was believed the crevice is not deep.

The bodies found are those of Alice James of Arlington, Wash., and Julius Dornblutt, Bellingham, Wash., a teacher. The missing are Beulah Lindbergh, Great Falls, Mont.; Viene Fisher, Coupeville, Wash.; Hope Weitman, Chewalah, Wash., and Maynard Howatt, Seattle.

Heavy Rain Follows Snow.

Fresh snow fell on the mountain last week and was followed by a heavy rain. Yesterday the weather turned warm and the combination of rain and heat loosened the snow field, according to a forest ranger.

Eight men of the party stayed on the mountain last night to aid searchers sent out by returning survivors in a hunt for the missing climbers. Five of them returned here today and three remained with the searching party to await arrival of more searchers with packhorses carrying food and equipment.

"The snow was not deep when the slide started, but gathered volume as it came down the slope."

The climbing party left Glacier Friday afternoon and went to a cabin four miles up the peak, planning a 5 a. m. start tomorrow for the long climb to the top. They had been climbing for eight and a half hours when the avalanche caught them, eight miles from the overnight stopping place.

L. A. McGee, college dean of men, was a leader of the climbing party.

Two women acrobats fell forty feet to the center ring at the Ringling Bros. and Barnum and Bailey circus last night and were severely injured. Several women spectators among the 10,000 at the show fainted as they saw the accident.

The acrobats are Mrs. Ida Walkmir, 32 years old, of Trieste, Italy, and Miss Kathe Strehl, 22, of Berlin, Germany. They and Mrs. Walkmir's husband, Gaultiero Walkmir, have a specialty act. Walkmir balances a 35 foot pole on his head and the women perform on a cross bar at the top of it.

Last night the women were spinning on the cross bar when Walkmir stepped on a pebble, and stumbled, throwing the women to the ground. They were taken to St. Luke's hospital. Mrs. Walkmir suffered a fractured left arm, and Miss Strehl had several ribs broken. Both suffered possible internal injuries.

Leaves to Get Ohio Minister Held by Arabs

BULLETIN.

JERUSALEM, July 24 (Monday).—(AP)—A. L. Miller, general secretary of the Jerusalem Y. M. C. A., said today he was leaving immediately for Bethlehem and expected to return within a few hours with the Rev. G. R. Goldner, Ohio clergyman who was kidnaped by Arabs six days ago.

JERUSALEM, July 23.—(AP)—A reliable source revealed tonight that the Rev. Gerould R. Goldner of Ohio, kidnaped five days ago by an Arab band, is still alive and well, and latest reports from intermediaries indicate improved possibilities that he will be released.

The reports, which were kept from the father, Dr. Jacob Goldner, Cleveland pastor, to prevent a possible disappointment, said feverish activity all yesterday at last had brought the young minister's release nearer.

Among these activities was the dispatch of a letter to the prisoner saying $5,000 ransom would be paid the Arab abductors.

Contacts Kidnapers.

The Bedouin emissary sent with the letter to the Moab hills reported he had contacted the kidnapers and had been promised a reply at a specified rendezvous.

The pastor said that when he received a reply in his son's handwriting, saying he was all right, and his passport, the money would be produced within five hours. The junior Goldner, who is 29 years old and has a pastorate in Mogadore, O., has been held since last Tuesday.

In his letter, the father said his Cleveland congregation had made the full sum available to meet the ransom demand.

Woman Says Pastor Is Safe.

The elder Goldner had said earlier that if no word came by tomorrow morning from his son, last heard from on Friday, the ban on the use of British military forces to effect his release should be lifted.

Earlier in the day the rapidly fading hopes for the safety of the captive were revived by a report that a Bedouin woman in the Bethlehem district said she could "vouch for the safety, well being and happiness" of Goldner and offered to act as an intermediary.

Father Fire Chief, Son Is Fireman and Sets the Fires

STOCKHOLM, July 23.—Erik Soederburg, a young fireman whose father is chief of the fire department, was in jail today on a charge of arson. Young Soederburg confessed starting eight fires so that he might win prizes for being the first fireman to arrive at the scene, police said.

the trade secretary said. "We thought, for instance, of how the European powers, in coöperation with the United States, could help in the economic development of China and the vast regions of Africa."

Hudson said Wohlthat expressed alarm over the deterioration of Germany's relations with England.

Says Nazi Feared Explosion.

"He thought the international situation between Britain and Germany never had been more dangerous," Hudson added. "He greatly feared an explosion."

Despite the German fears, the trade secretary indicated that he made it clear to Wohlthat that Great Britain never would agree to give away any of her overseas possessions.

"I said I did not think Britain would be a party to any arrangement which would include return of German or other mandated territories, but we discussed technical possibilities of getting around these difficulties," Hudson asserted.

Hudson Defends Plan.

Hudson maintained that no figure for a loan was mentioned in the discussion, but said that other powers would be invited to share.

Despite the furor caused by the disclosures, Hudson was not repentent.

"I still think it is a good plan," he declared.

Although the political storm may force Hudson to resign, the incident has increased anxieties of members of parliament who fear that Chamberlain will launch a new appeasement policy when parliament adjourns for its summer vacation. The recess is scheduled for Aug. 4.

As a result the prime minister is being urged to keep parliament in permanent session or set up a powerful council of state, including opposition leaders, to supervise foreign policy.

POLES PUT 'IF' IN THREAT

WARSAW, Poland, July 23.—(AP)—In an editorial apparently inspired by Polish military circles, the newspaper Express Poranny today said Poland "will fight for Danzig if there is no other way of keeping order in the Baltic area and of keeping ourselves free of the yoke of German imperialism."

This was regarded generally as a reply by the Polish army to rumors of negotiations over Danzig.

Observers were interested in the conditional reference, "if there is no other way," which was taken as evidence that the army—determined and ready as it is—does not eliminate the possibility of peaceful solution.

To Fight for Honor.

The editorial said Poland "will accept every challenge if the honor of Poland or the basis of Poland's development as a great nation is threatened."

The influential Kurjer Warszawski, through its London correspondent, termed "too absurd to be considered" published rumors in London that British credits might be offered Germany if the reich would "turn to peace economics and collaboration."

The semi-official Gazetta Polska devoted editorials to the Jewish question, including anti-Semitic trends, which lately has been pushed into the background. Jews are Poland's second largest minority, about 10 per cent of the population.

Jews Receive a Warning.

Replying to recent articles in the anti-Semitic Nationalist opposition press, the Gazetta Polska said: "We emphasize that Poland is essentially hostile to all forms of racialism and pogroms against Jews. However, although the hatred of the Jewish masses against Hitler is of some value for us at the present, we are not sure that it will be so for the future.

"If the Jews are now in the same camp with us, we can regard them as allies, but there is no reason why we should recompense them for that."

Such recompense was assumed to include possible concessions in immigration laws.

TRAIN WASHER DIES OF INJURIES.

Fred Leman, 64 years old, 221 West 67th street, died yesterday in St. Luke's hospital of injuries suffered July 7 when he was struck by a Rock Island passenger train in the La Salle street station. He was employed as a car washer for the railroad.

FRANCO'S PURGE OF FOES SNARES TWO GENERALS

Yague, One of Best Aids, Reported Jailed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ST. JEAN DE LUZ, France, July 23.—Gen. Gonzalo Quiepo de Llano, firebrand of the Franco forces and hero of the conquest of Andalusia in the early days of the Spanish civil war, today left Burgos, Spanish capital, for France by automobile with an escort of several guards but stopped at San Sebastian, near the frontier, it was reported here.

Gen. Quiepo de Llano.

[A Gibraltar dispatch on Saturday had reported De Llano was fleeing to Portugal.]

Gen. Juan Yague, commander of the Moroccan forces and generally considered the best of Generalissimo Francisco Franco's generals, was said to be under arrest, but this report could not be confirmed. His absence from Madrid during the Nationalist victory parade caused wide comment at the time. It was generally believed he was in disgrace due to his outspoken protests at the fact that Italian troops had headed the parade and at his bucking at the influence of the pro-Italian Falangists [Spanish Fascists].

Relieved of All Posts.

Gen. Quiepo de Llano was relieved two days ago of his posts as commander of the 2d army district, which embraces Andalusia, and inspector general of the carabineers, the armed customs and revenue forces.

Held under house arrest at the Maria Isabella hotel in Burgos, he was allowed to roam about the hotel freely but was forbidden to receive visitors and apparently could not leave the hotel. He was seen several times chatting in the hotel lobby with army officers, presumably those in charge of him. Callers were told he could receive nobody.

Censors have banned all details of the story in dispatches from Burgos. There is no confirmation here of reported disturbances in Andalusia since the ousting of Gen. Quiepo de Llano but every one who knows Spain wonders why the Andalusians took it as calmly as they appear to.

Little Czar of Andalusia.

Gen. Quiepo de Llano had been the little czar of Andalusia since the Spanish civil war broke out in 1936 and was adored by the population. Care was taken to summon him to Burgos before announcing that he had been removed from his posts.

The cause of his disgrace was a speech which he delivered on July 18, the anniversary of the beginning of the civil war. In the speech he dropped several thinly veiled uncomplimentary allusions to the Falangist party. The general reminded his audience that the city of Valladolid, headquarters of the Falangists, had been given the laureate cross of San Fernando, Spain's highest decoration for valor, as a reward for its rôle during the war.

Speaking of what he called the more important rôle played by Seville, Gen. Quiepo de Llano remarked: "Seville is not willing to take a back seat when it comes to distributing credit for the success of the war."

He made it clear that he resented alleged favoritism shown to the Falangists and hinted that it might be well to leave the direction of the country in the army's hands.

The reaction was swift. Three days later, Gen. Andres Saliquet, a portly, walrus mustached officer who commanded on the Madrid front during the latter stages of the war, went by airplane to Seville to take Gen. Quiepo de Llano's place, but only after the latter had first been summoned to Burgos.

That same evening, the government radio officially announced that Quiepo de Llano had been relieved "in order to give his services in another ministry."

The situation looks like a beginning of the long expected showdown between the army, whose boldest spokesmen were Quiepo de Llano and Gen. Yague, and the pro-Italian, pro-German Falangists who want Spain to tie up with the Rome-Berlin axis.

SPANISH CARDINAL'S PALACE BURNS; NOTED CATHEDRAL MENACED

TOLEDO, Spain, July 24 [Monday].—(AP)—The archepiscopal palace of Toledo was ruined today by fire which for a while threatened to spread to the adjoining 700-year old cathedral, possibly the oldest church in Christendom and repository of an incalculable treasure in art. The fire started last night in a military pharmacy on the lower floor of the palace.

Madrid and Toledo firemen, assisted by citizens, managed to control the fire in the part of the palace nearest the cathedral, and apparently succeeded in averting the danger. But the blaze continued to rage in all other parts of the palace.

Cardinal Isidore Goma y Tomas, after saving the valuable library, consented to abandon the burning building shortly after midnight.

BRITISH SOLDIER SLAIN BY BAND OF HOLY LAND ARABS

JERUSALEM, July 23.—A British soldier was killed today and four others were wounded, one severely, in a clash near Hebron between troops and an Arab terrorist band.

During the night the new Jewish settlement of Negba, near Gaza, suffered heavy firing by Arab terrorists. The settlers, who have been living there only two weeks, returned the fire and repelled the attack. The bandits had mined the road to the settlement, preventing the arrival of Jewish reënforcements.

The position of Negba is aggravated by the fact that the government did not sanction its establishment and therefore contends that it is entitled to withhold security forces for the settlement.

DROWNS IN HURON RIVER.

Ann Arbor, Mich., July 23.—[Special.]—Steven Boswell, 27 years old, of Ecorse, was drowned late Saturday while swimming in the Huron river near the Ford dam southeast of Ypsilanti.

TURKEY REJOICES OVER RETURN OF HATAY REPUBLIC

Last of French Army Quits City of Antioch.

ANKARA, Turkey, July 23.—(AP)—Rejoicing Turks today began a three day national holiday to mark the return of the republic of Hatay from Syria to Turkey.

The Hatay territory, at the extreme northeastern corner of the Mediterranean, was turned over to Turkey June 23 by France in return for Turkey's participation in the British-French pact.

There are 220,000 inhabitants, mostly Turks and Syrians, in the 10,000 mile area which was a part of France's league of nations' mandate in Syria. Hatay formerly was known as the Sanjak [district] of Alexandretta.

Turkish Flags Hoisted.

The parliament of the tiny semi-independent Hatay republic voted itself out of existence June 29 after approving its transfer to Turkey and the Turkish flag was hoisted on the parliament building.

Withdrawal of French troops has been under way for three weeks, the last detachment quitting the ancient city of Antioch today after solemnly saluting the Turkish colors which were displayed everywhere.

Military barracks were occupied fully by Turkish troops at Antioch and Turkish civil authorities took over complete control of the province, which became Turkey's sixty-third provincial unit.

The French tricolor fluttered alongside the Turkish flag in many places and cheering crowds joined in singing the national anthems of both countries.

Syrians Fear Turk Revenge.

The Syrian population of Alexandretta, however, waited anxiously for some indication of the attitude of the Turks since many feared Turkey wanted to pay back an old world war score.

The Syrians revolted from Turkey during the war after which Syria became a French mandate. Alexandretta was given home rule.

The port of Alexandretta is a maritime outlet for trade of the Syrian city of Aleppo. It is not considered necessary to Turkey, but the Turks have feared the double danger of Arab attacks upon Turkish residents there and the possible entrance of Italian interests.

TRUCKER, ILL, KILLS HIMSELF.

Lloyd Lonngren, 37 years old, a truck driver, ended his life yesterday by inhaling gas in his home at 5917 Emerald avenue. Police were told he had been in ill health.

NAZIS ORDER EVICTED AUSTRIAN ARCHBISHOP TO MOVE SECOND TIME

SALZBURG, Germany, July 23.—(AP)—Archbishop Sigismund Waitz, whom Nazis recently evicted from his palace, has been notified he must leave his new residence.

The Catholic primate of Austria has been living in a house near the Benedictine abbey of St. Peter since Nazis took possession of his palace on May 30 while he was out of town. The building which the archbishop has rented will be converted into government offices. His former palace is now used as an SS [Elite Guards] headquarters.

The Capuchin friars recently were ordered to move out of their monastery at Salzburg on the ground it was state property and needed for other purposes. They had occupied the monastery since 1602. The building will be used as a maternity home.

BOY, 5, ACCIDENTALLY SHOT.

Andrew De Luca, 5 years old, was shot through the right cheek in his home at 1111 Hudson avenue yesterday when a revolver was discharged accidentally.

TOWNSHIP HEADS TO STUDY NEW RELIEF BUDGET

Standardization Object of Chicago Parley.

A standard method of determining needs of families or individuals applying for relief anywhere in Illinois will be considered by a group of downstate township supervisors at a meeting in Chicago Wednesday.

They will confer with Leo M. Lyons, executive secretary of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission. He called the meeting in line with Friday's announcement by the IERC that all 190,000 relief cases in this state are to be reinvestigated.

According to the commission, an individual or a family requires certain funds and quantities of food as minimum essentials. These are listed in a budgetary plan adopted by the IERC last Friday. The amount of money to be allowed to meet the budget is to be determined by the costs of the various items in each specific community.

Food Needs Are Outlined.

For a person more than 17 years old the budget recommends a half quart of milk a day, plus the following monthly allowance: Potatoes, 10 pounds; tomatoes, 4 pounds; other vegetables, 15 pounds; eggs 1½ dozen; meat and fish, 4 pounds; cereals, 16 pounds; fats, butter, etc., 3 pounds; sugar, 3 pounds. One quart of milk a day is allowed for a child under 7 years and ¾ of a quart for one between 7 and 16 years old.

The recommended budget specifies that clothing should be sufficient to "meet the decency and health requirements of each community." Rent should be sufficient to provide adequate shelter.

The budget recommends one ton of coal a month from Oct. 15 to April 30 for a family, with the maximum of a ton and a half of soft coal in extreme weather. Money for water, gas, and electricity is to be allowed on a basis of average bills of the community, but not more than $1.50 for gas and $2.50 a month for electricity unless minimum bills in that locality are higher.

List Ice, Carfare, Insurance.

Ice is allowed as "necessity requires it for proper care of perishable foods, for infants or for illness."

Carfare is to be allowed for children who have more than a mile and one-half to go to school or for clinic attendance or for working members of the family. Medical care is allowed.

The recommended budget provides for insurance payments of 25 cents a week for an adult and 10 cents for a child. It is "to maintain minimum insurance covering burial." The budget is also to pay union dues if necessary to keep a working member of a family on his job.

The budget allows a maximum of 60 cents per person per month for incidentals and household supplies.

MAYORS PROTEST WPA SLASH; ASK CHANGE IN LAW

New York, July 23.—[Special.]—The whole WPA program will collapse unless congress acts at once to appropriate additional funds for WPA and to modify restrictive provisions of the new federal relief act, the United States conference of mayors declared today in a report sent to each member of the house and senate.

The organization did not indicate how much it thought should be added to the $1,477,000,000 set aside for WPA, but it warned that wholesale dismissals and widespread suffering were inevitable if the law remains unchanged.

The report was prepared by a committee composed of Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland, Mayor Richard W. Reading of Detroit, Mayor Maurice J. Tobin of Boston, Mayor Howard W. Jackson of Baltimore, and Mayor Fiorello La Guardia of New York, president of the conference.

The Inquiring Reporter

The Question.

Should a reliefer do work for government aid? If so, how many hours should he work a week?

Where Answered.

In north side streets.

The Answers.

Fred Opitz, 926 Windsor avenue, restaurant worker—Naturally, people getting relief from the government should work. They should put in a week similar to what people in private industry do—I should say an eight hour day, five days a week. That would be 40 hours a week. And single men should not be given relief through the WPA at all. It would be a good thing if government would give more help to private industry.

Margaret Provo, 925 Montrose avenue, switchboard operator—Work in return for getting relief? Why, absolutely! It would lower the morale of those on relief if they didn't give work in return for the money. Their hours should be the same as those of people working for private businesses. I should say around 40 hours a week. I am against the dole. And people on relief should be paid according to the size of their families.

Sarge Butler, 4526 Sheridan road, artist—I am opposed to payment of relief money by the government. Government should give industry aid. Then private businesses could take care of the unemployed. But if we are to have government relief the beneficiaries should work, I should say, from 40 to 44 hours a week.

R. D. Newlin, 1438 North Dearborn street, chemist for engineering firm—I think the man getting government relief should do work in return for it. I don't think that for $55 a month he should have to work as many hours as people getting higher salaries in private industry. He should give $55 worth of work, if that is what he gets, in return.

Andrew Shereck, 6921 West 26th street, Berwyn—O, absolutely! People on relief should work. They should do as much work as the government requires of them. What the government is demanding in the way of working hours from reliefers is fair enough, it seems to me. The new 130 hour a month requirement of the WPA certainly is not too much.

SURVEY REVEALS MORE COUPLES ON CITY PAY ROLL

Double Earners Secure in Civil Service Jobs.

More cases of husbands and wives who both are holding jobs on the city pay rolls were disclosed yesterday. Many citizens who would like to enjoy the security and regular salary that go with tax supported jobs charge that these double payrollers are taking unfair advantage of the civil service law.

The present law does not permit removal of either the husband or the wife, where both are under civil service, in the interest of giving jobs to the unemployed.

Two Paid $6,979 Yearly.

The case of Albert Achhammer, 601 Deming place, and his wife, Florence, is typical. Achhammer is assistant chief clerk in the office of City Controler R. B. Upham. His salary is $375 a month. Mrs. Achhammer is a senior clerk in Upham's office. She is paid $206.66 a month. Their combined salary is $6,979 a year.

John Pinger, 7818 Kingston avenue, is a senior clerk in the elevator division of the building department. He has worked for the city twenty-five years. His salary is $206.66 a month.

Wife Draws Same Pay.

His wife, Mary C. Pinger, is a senior stenographer in the office of City Sealer James O'Keefe. She has been employed by the city for twenty years. Her pay also is $206.66 a month.

Another case of double payrolling was found in the pay rolls of the Work Projects administration. Donald N. Uthus is district engineer for the WPA in Milwaukee. His salary is $325 a month, or $3,900 a year. His brother, Bruce Uthus, is regional administrator for the WPA in Chicago with territory including Wisconsin. His salary is $7,500 a year.

Falls Into River While Chasing Ball; Drowns

Running after a baseball at a picnic, William Wojik of 2725 Bonfield street fell into the Des Plaines river south of Hinsdale yesterday. Wojik, who was 25 years old, drowned before members of the party could reach him. His body was recovered by Arthur A. Bennett of the Du Page county sheriff's office and Chief Dale Flavin of the Hinsdale police.

CITY WILL PUT 1,450 MORE RELIEFERS ON PARKS JOBS TODAY

The second shift of Chicago's 50,000 able bodied reliefers, numbering about 1,450 men, will go to work today under the new regulations devised by Oscar Hewitt, commissioner of public works, and Leo M. Lyons, Chicago relief administrator. They will be assigned to the city bureau of parks six hours a day for the next five days.

A similar number of reliefers was assigned to this project last week, but on no single day did the full group report. Lyons warned that those reliefers who do not work the time required will have part of their checks withheld pending investigation. Able bodied reliefers are required to work to earn $15 of their monthly relief allowance at the rate of 50 cents an hour.

Other projects for reliefers will include cleaning the city's street name plates and trafic signs, cleaning parkways and lots, clerical work in gathering and compiling statistical data on working reliefers, and work in small parks and playgrounds.

TWO SEIZED IN STREET BRAWL.

A police squad stopped early yesterday to investigate a brawl at Monroe and Dearborn streets. Two men fled. Two, Mike Kavaloski, 818 West 23d street, and Edward Cook, 6019 Halsted street, were arrested. The fifth, Russell Sailor, 4445 West End avenue, said the four other men had taken $4 from him.

THE ABC'S OF SILVER (1)

By CALEB

THE childhood, youth and maturity of Silver reveal a biography richer in romance and adventure than the most picturesque individual's in history. For silver, the "Queen of Metals," epitomizes whole nations of individuals . . . from the days of the long-ago Sumerians until now. Perhaps that is why her unique life-story begins to haunt one, the moment he steps into our own glamorous collection of this ware.

Not from the angle of technique, but of human interest, let us try to recapture some of the aspects of that story. . . .

Man has always loved this luminous metal for two paramount reasons. One is its beauty; the other its amiability. In tribute to the former, artists, composers, poets, historians, have exhausted their talents, but not their subject. Even scientists have found its atomic weight, specific gravity, and such-like characteristics, very dull facts alongside that of its supernal and irresistible radiance. For no other surface—a science-fact again—approaches the sheen of silver as a light reflector.

Moreover, there's but one other metal, they remind us, which excels this favorite in ductility and malleability. Like gold, silver can be pulled and stretched, beaten and shaped, to the craftsman-heart's desire. No wonder the silversmith's devotion is a lifelong obsession, to which continuous generations have dedicated themselves.

Beautiful, then—and amiable—silver has been friend to the needs of the human race, authentically for some forty-four centuries . . . and conjecturally since the unrecorded days of the Dawn Man. And as one would suspect, all such needs originally were purely utilitarian. Using a shell, our prehistoric ancestor scooped up water, and dug into his raw fish. Then some shrewder-minded savage attached a stick to the shell—and without benefit of patent was born the first spoon. A flattened stone for knife . . . a pointed piece of wood for fork—and any deficits in mealtime satisfaction were remedied by husky fingers and thumbs.

To complete this elemental need-picture, shells or hollowed gourds became jug and bowl; and any broad leaf or flat boulder could double as a plate. Thus developed the patterns of utensilry—but precisely where and when silver entered the scene to embody them, the archæologists are still disputing. Beyond dispute, however, is the immutable antiquity of its appearance.

CURRENT YEAR'S DEFICIT MAY GO OVER 5 BILLION

Congress Is Breaking All Appropriation Marks.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 23.—With this session of congress breaking all appropriation records, there now looms the possibility that the deficit for the current 1940 fiscal year will exceed the unprecedented figure of 5 billion dollars.

Appropriations and reappropriations at this session already exceed 13 billion. The regular and deficiency appropriations aggregate about 9½ billion, the reappropriations about 3½ billion. Following is a summary of the government's prospective financial situation for the fiscal year ending June 30 next:

Regular appropriations authorized to June 30	$ 9,534,088,478
Funds required for interest on public debt	1,050,000,000
Fund allocated for debt retirement	100,000,000
Total possible expenditures	10,684,088,478
Anticipated revenues (budget estimate)	5,669,320,000
Probable deficit	5,014,768,478

This table does not include $2,515,000,000 in permanent and indefinite appropriations principally reimbursable from social security taxes and other trust fund receipts.

Economy Bloc Overwhelmed.

Although the budget for 1940 estimated the expenditures for the fiscal year at but $8,995,663,200 the spenders in congress overwhelmed the economy advocates to appropriate at this session a sum greater than the total expenses of the federal government from 1789 to 1890, inclusive [including the cost of both the Mexican and civil wars], which aggregated $12,437,314,411.

Under the existing law limiting the public debt to 45 billion the government will not be able to expend all of the funds congress has appropriated for this fiscal year. The debt on June 30 was 40½ billion. The remaining 4½ billion of debt the government is authorized to incur is 500 million less than the prospective deficit. Congress at this session rejected an administrative plea to raise the debt limit to 50 billion.

Although federal deficits are not a novelty in Washington, the possible effect of this enlarged deficit on business is cause of much speculation. The deficit for the fiscal year 1932 was $3,147,919,485; in 1936 it was $4,763,841,642; in 1937 the deficit was reduced to $3,252,971,200 and again in 1938 it fell to $1,499,525,881. In 1939 it again jumped to $3,542,267,754.

How Appropriations Mount.

The appropriations for 1939 and 1940 on a comparative basis are as follows:

An accompanying table shows the detailed receipts, expenditures, appropriations, debt retirement, interest on the public debt and gross and net deficits for the fiscal years from 1933 to 1939.

This table shows that in all the last seven deficit years congress has appropriated money faster than the expanding bureaus and agencies could spend it, with the single exception of the year 1934. But the situation in 1934 was met by the spenders, who used, almost to the limit, funds reappropriated from acts passed in 1933.

The details of funds appropriated under the heading permanent and indefinite consists of moneys paid into various trust funds, the allocations to the sinking fund and various other activities.

Two Boy Sailors Overdue; Coast Guard Makes Search

A speedboat from the Wilmette coast guard station searched in vain early today for a sailing kayak in which Edward Flesch, 17 years old, 1029 Lill avenue, and Bernard Wagner, 18, of 1035 Lill avenue, set out from Diversey beach for Fort Sheridan early yesterday. The coast guardsmen said they would renew the search at daybreak. Arthur Flesch, father of Edward, who appealed to the coast guard and the police to search for the boys, said the trip should have been completed by noon yesterday.

V. F. W. PROGRAM DRAWS 30,000 TO HINES HOSPITAL

More than 30,000 persons attended the Veterans of Foreign Wars program at the Edward Hines Jr. hospital yesterday.

The program opened with a military parade from 5th avenue and Harrison street, Maywood, to the hospital at Hines. Many attended a luncheon at the hospital. Speakers included Eugene Antwerp, national commander; James Van Zandt, former national commander; William J. Grace, Illinois commander; Earl Southard Jr., Illinois vice commander, and William B. Bryan, Cook county commander.

DEVELOP 4 BLADE PROPELLER FOR PURSUIT PLANES

New York, July 23.—[Special.]—Development of a new "electric fan" airplane propeller with four blades, the first hint of which was given by the army several weeks ago, was announced today by the Curtiss propeller division of Curtiss-Wright corporation. The company said it soon will start production of the new propeller at its Clifton, N. J., plant.

Designed primarily for small, high speed pursuit planes, it is expected to prove advantageous for multi-engined bombers and large transport planes. By decreasing the diameter of the propeller, it will allow closer spacing of multi-engine installations with a resultant saving of weight in the wing structure.

The propeller was developed in cooperation with the United States Army Air corps and has been given extensive flight tests at Wright field, Dayton, O., on a Curtiss P-36A pursuit ship.

THIRD TERM BEE BUZZES; FARLEY SEES ROOSEVELT

Politicians Await News of Conference.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hyde Park, N. Y., July 23.—President Roosevelt and Postmaster General James A. Farley were in a huddle tonight which may decide the fate of the Democratic party in 1940.

Farley, under whose party leadership Mr. Roosevelt was elected in 1932 and again in 1936, arrived at the Roosevelt estate late this afternoon from Keene, N. H., where he had been visiting his son at a summer camp.

The cabinet member and chairman of the Democratic national committee came to confer with the President on the heels of reports that he had told at least three senators that he has very definite ideas on a third term and will oppose a third term for the best interests of the country and the Democratic party.

Finds President Motoring.

When Farley arrived at the Roosevelt home for dinner he learned that the President was motoring about his estate at the wheel of his own car. The postmaster general was transferred to the President's limousine and began a search for his chief. They met, appropriately enough, at a crossroad on the estate. Farley then entered the President's low priced car and continued on the tour which ended at the Roosevelt family home.

The President gave no indication that he and Farley were to engage in a showdown political conference and neither did the postmaster general. He waved a greeting to reporters and said he had come to say good-by to his chief before he sailed for a European tour with his two daughters Wednesday.

Ready to Speak Piece.

Farley has told friends that when he is asked by the President about his feelings on the third term he will deliver them to the President straight from the shoulder and in the hearing of no one but Mr. Roosevelt.

Farley's friends are positive that the message he will deliver, if he is asked, is that there is an overwhelming sentiment in the country against a third term and he will do all in his power to defeat such a bid.

At the same time, friends believe, Farley will unburden himself of complaints. His friends report that he feels he has been thrust in the background by the New Deal brain trusters and is smarting over the President's neglect of the party which put him in power.

Farley Opposed Purge.

Farley was opposed to the attempt to purge Democratic senators who opposed the ill-fated court packing plan, but his advice was ignored. He has not been consulted by Mr. Roosevelt on appointments and takes no part in New Deal councils.

Mr. Roosevelt has shown no interest in Farley's possibilities in 1940, although the postmaster general's friends have been boosting him.

The conference may have a profound influence on President Roosevelt's determination of his 1940 rôle. There is a belief that Mr. Roosevelt will not run if he feels that he cannot win by a comfortable margin.

POLICE FIND 7 SLOT MACHINES DESPITE TIPOFF

Four squads of state police searched northern Cook county last night for slot machines. They found seven—two in Glenview, two in Norwood Park township, and three in Franklin Park. According to Capt. H. W. Nofs, in command of the squads, more machines probably would have been found had not word of their activities preceded them.

"These fellows have a better information network than we have," Capt. Nofs declared. "The tip-off was just ahead of us. We had information that slot machines were in operation in a number of places until a half hour before our arrival."

PARK BEARS GET NO BETTER; JUST A WISER PUBLIC

Yellowstone Park, Wyo., July 23.—(AP)—Chummy bears aren't biting so many people in Yellowstone Park this year.

Bear in Yellowstone Park.

Park officials say that's true because tourists are restraining themselves—not because of any change in the bear's nature. The visitors are heeding more the caution against petting or teasing the food-bent animals.

By mid-July twenty-three persons reported they had been bitten. At that time last year thirty-four had been injured.

Today Is 24th Anniversary of Eastland Ship Disaster

Today is the twenty-fourth anniversary of the steamer Eastland disaster. The lake excursion ship capsized in the river at its dock near the Clark street bridge. The disaster cost the lives of 812 persons, members of a crowd of 2,500 excursionists who had chartered four steamers for an outing to Michigan City, Ind.

RISE IN FEDERAL SPENDING SHOWN BY TAX SURVEY

Per Capita Debt Up $333 in 25 Years.

Figures showing how the federal government has replaced state and city governments as the nation's chief borrower and spender are contained in a report made yesterday by the Federation of Tax Administrators, a national association of federal, state, and municipal tax officials.

The figures disclosed that the total governmental debt—the aggregate debt of all government units in the nation—increased from $50 a person in 1912 to $383 a person in 1937, the fourth year of the Roosevelt administration.

In 1912 local city governments in the country owed 72 per cent of the total governmental debt, the federation reported. State governments owed 7 per cent of the debt at that time and the federal government 21 per cent. The total governmental debt was $4,850,460,000.

Per Capita Debt $283 in 1922.

In 1922 the total debt had increased to $30,845,626,000, of which the federal government owed 72 per cent, the states 3 per cent, and the cities 25 per cent. The per capita debt had increased to $283.

In 1932, the last year of President Hoover's term, the total debt was $39,411,404,000. The federal government owed 55 per cent of this, the states owed 7 per cent, and the city governments 38 per cent. The per capita debt was $314.

In the five years from 1932 to 1937, after President Roosevelt took office, the total governmental debt increased to $49,549,533,000, of which the federal government was responsible for 70 per cent. The states' portion of the debt dropped to 5 per cent, and the city governments' part to 25 per cent.

Federal Debt Rise Shown.

This meant that, while the federal debt increased by about 13 billion dollars between 1932 and 1937, the debts of the states remained about the same, and the local government debt decreased by more than 3 billion dollars, the federation said.

In the ten years from 1922 to 1932 the per capita debt had increased from $283 to $314, a rise of $31. Then, from 1932 to 1937, the per capita rate rose from $314 to $383, an increase of $69.

The federation report asserted that the increase in the federal debt between 1929 and 1937 was offset somewhat by greatly increased holdings of cash and claims against assets of governmental agencies.

Items listed as offsets advanced from $600,000,000 in 1929 to $7,250,000,000 in 1937, and included cash, bonds held by the Postal Savings system, and recoverable assets held by various federal credit agencies, such as the Reconstruction Finance corporation, the Home Owners' Loan corporation, and the Public Works administration.

BAPTIST LEADER HITS RELIGIOUS LIBERTY CURBS

Talks to Delegates of Sixty Nations.

Atlanta, Ga., July 23.—(AP)—Religious liberty which transcends "mere toleration" was proclaimed today before Baptists of sixty nations as a keystone of their creed.

Dr. George W. Truett of Dallas, Tex., president of the Baptist World alliance, addressing a vast semi-open air session of the Sixth Baptist World congress, said that from the very beginning Baptists had grasped the concept of religious liberty as "the nursing mother of all liberty."

Strikes at Persecutions.

They claim it, he said, "not only for themselves, but as well for all others—for Protestants of all denominations, for Romanists, for Jews, for Quakers, for Turks, for pagans, for all men everywhere."

He said the "astounding fact of ghastly persecutions, both racial and religious, continues to challenge the whole world with horror, and to make a blot that is an unspeakable disgrace to civilization," and referred to "the great doctrin of religious liberty and its inevitable corollary, the separation of church and state."

Adding a special word for the Baptist people of the United States Dr. Truett declared:

"While we are lamenting the loss of religious liberty and other civil rights in different sections of the world, it behooves us to open our eyes to insidious encroachments here in our own land." As examples, he cited, first, "the recent agitation in connection with the national congress to include church employés in federal security pensions" and, second, "the allocation of public funds to sectarian purposes.

Defeated by Pressure.

Of the first point, he said:

"Such proposal was defeated by church pressure, but let the ominous fact be remembered that it was also church pressure that introduced the question in congress."

On the second point, he said:

"Bills are proposed in various states, again and again, for taxes to be appropriated for sectarian schools. If haply any of our Baptist people have in an hour of weakness been in any way enthralled by this encroachment, let them speedily repent of such an inconsistent course and go and sin no more."

Dr. Truett was introduced by Dr. L. K. Williams, Negro, Chicago, president of the Baptist national convention, with a membership of 4,000,000 Negroes. Dr. Williams presided at today's session.

DOG FOUND MAD; 4 BITTEN IN LOOP TAKE TREATMENT

A large collie dog that bit four persons in the loop Saturday was suffering from rabies, a test by the city health department laboratory disclosed yesterday. The four victims were immediately summoned to the department's office and furnished with anti-rabies serum. One of the victims is Trafic Policeman George Buttenshen, who captured the dog barehanded and had it killed. The others bitten are Miss Alberta Winner, 4437 North Racine avenue; John Gannon, 2958 Adams street, and Eugene Yanmanski, 1819 Lincoln Park West, employés of a restaurant at 54 West Randolph street. The dog had run into the restaurant kitchen.

A WAGNER ACT INQUIRY.

The house of representatives has authorized an investigation of the operations of the Wagner act and of the National Labor Relations board created by the act. Supporters of the administration attempted to defeat the resolution, but were snowed under, 252 to 135.

When this congress met it was widely believed that the Wagner act would be amended. Mr. Wagner himself was pledged to modifications. The American Federation of Labor approved the law in general, but was vehement in denouncing the board. Farmers serving creameries and canneries were incensed at both the law and the board. Many employers were convinced not only that the law was unfair to them but that it promoted discord where good relations had always existed. Citizens generally were disturbed by the large number of strikes which had occurred after the Supreme court had declared the act constitutional; there was a widespread belief that the act had fomented trouble instead of allaying it.

Numerous amendments to the act have been introduced in the house, but none of them has been favorably reported, and the committee itself, under the chairmanship of Congressman Mary Norton of New Jersey, has produced no recommendations of its own. Meanwhile the pressure for amendment has been heightened by events. There was a prolonged coal strike. Interruptions of work in the automobile industry have been an almost daily occurrence. Presently there is the prospect of a strike in the stockyards and in face of the threat the labor board is inactive. Jurisdictional quarrels in many lines are becoming more troublesome. Frequent complaints have been heard of the partiality of the board as between labor organizations and as against employers. The employés of the board have been charged with incompetence and unfairness and, in numerous cases, the courts to which the judgments of the board were appealed have sustained the accusations.

Despite this growing accumulation of objections, many of them undoubtedly well founded, the labor committee of the house has sat with folded hands. Evidently the administration wants the act to stand as it is, unamended, as if the law were a perfect thing which it would be a desecration for human hands to touch.

The truth seems to be that Mr. Roosevelt regards the C. I. O. as a most valuable political asset and the C. I. O. stands alone in indorsing the act and the board. All other interests, including the national interest in industrial peace, have been sacrificed to attain a partisan advantage.

No other explanation of the opposition to the investigation makes sense. The committee is not empowered to change the law and in any event will not report until congress reconvenes in January. The committee is authorized to do little more than find the facts. It is to inquire if the labor board has been fair to labor organizations and employers; whether the Wagner act has been a fomenter or an allayer of industrial strife; and whether the board has, through its regulations and interpretations, followed the intention of congress or perverted it. In addition the committee may, if it chooses, suggest amendments to the act.

There is nothing in these terms of reference which would cause any uneasiness among administration followers or the labor board if their consciences were clear.

THE LEGION GOES DIGNIFIED.

The American Legion is gathering in Chicago in September, and the convention committee is greatly concerned that its meeting should be dignified. Recently it rejected, on grounds of dignity, a poster offered by Mr. Petty, the proprietor of the popular air brush harem. Mr. Petty's drum majorette wore considerably more clothing than do most of his feminine confections, and at least as much as some of her flesh and blood sisters will exhibit in the Legion parade, but she was too racy for the suddenly staid committee.

It seems to us that the committee is unnecessarily alarmed. The Legionnaires may leave their wives at home—if they're lucky—but they will have to bring along the stomachs, gall bladders, and other plumbing which their doctors have been viewing with apprehensive grunts for the last couple of years. The Legion, most of it, has marched past forty, and in a few more years it's going to be dignified whether it wants to or not.

We confess that we know them only by hearsay, but some of the Legion conventions in the early '20s must have been humdingers. By reports that have reached us, no doubt as inflated in the telling as those earlier tales of what went on in Bar le Duc, where the arrival of the Legion was a signal for shopkeepers to board up their windows, mothers to hustle their daughters off to the country, and the police department to barricade itself in its own lockup.

But, as we say, it probably never happened. Chicago entertained the Legion in 1933, and while there were a number of paper bags of water and a little furniture dropping from hotel windows, and there was quite a bit of amateur trafic direction, the boys seemed to spend most of their time looking for some one named Elmer. And that was six years ago.

When they did eyes right at the reviewing stand on Memorial day, the Legionnaires probably noticed a scant row of venerable gentlemen in black slouch hats. They may not look it today, but we'll bet that when the G. A. R. held a reunion back in the '70s the members didn't spend all their time listening to speeches by Uncle Billy Sherman and Pap Thomas.

We hope the Legion takes warning and has a good time in Chicago. It won't be so many years before the boys will be reduced to sitting around and lying to each other.

THE PEACE AND SECURITY OF THE UNITED STATES.

Mr. Roosevelt again produced out of his hat the unnamed business man who is his Charlie McCarthy when needed to give strange authority to White House ideas. If Hyde Park can contain another memorial, there should be one to this Unknown Business Man, and Mr. Roosevelt could put in a standing order for wreaths.

This time the unknown business man confided to Mr. Roosevelt that business had been all ready for an upturn when congress smashed it in by refusing to pass a new neutrality law, to take off the arms embargo, and give the chief executive a freer hand to intervene in a European war. Mr. Roosevelt said that fear of this war had been holding the business recovery back and that congress dashed all hopes of peace when it did not do what he wanted it to do.

The country received this report from Mr. Roosevelt's Hyde Park press conference with proper amazement. Congressional comment upon it was largely acid. It was observed that the stock market had been booming ever since the house of representatives first turned Mr. Roosevelt down and that the price of wheat has been falling. When there is a fear of war these processes are reversed. The price of wheat goes up and the stock market is shaky. The truth is that congress voted to preserve peace and nearly everybody in the country knows it. Mr. Roosevelt's head must have been turned by the royal visit, or at least given another twist.

There are eastern snobs who, regarding themselves as lower class Englishmen, would throw their country into war and slaughter Americans. They resent the congressional action quite as much as Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Hull do. And they have the effrontery to say that the chances of peace were diminished by the congressional refusal to let Mr. Roosevelt throw the nation against one set of belligerents in a war which will be imperialistic if it comes. This contradiction of facts and reversal of the truth is fortunately perceivable as tricky humbug.

Congress worked for peace and Mr. Roosevelt worked for a war. The senators who told Mr. Roosevelt he didn't have the votes and could not have his bill wanted to protect the United States from instant embroilment in the next European crisis. Mr. Roosevelt demanded that he be allowed to threaten Germany and Italy with the forces of the United States. He probably did not think he could declare that an American army would be landed in Europe at once, but he did intend the Nazis and Fascists to know that they would be regarded as foes of the United States. He intended them to understand that the resources of this country would be put at the disposal of the French and the British. Then we'd have to take the consequences.

He may have thought that this would bluff Hitler and Mussolini and make Great Britain and France too powerful to be opposed. We don't know what he actually hoped, because the collectivist gains in a war would be so tremendous that many of the New Dealers would welcome one as the means of bringing the country entirely under control. They would do that if they could and in war excitement they might be able. Very likely nothing could stop the immediate conscription of all American activities. This is a great temptation to the New Deal collectivists, who would pay almost any price in other people's money and lives to gain complete mastery. How far they would go in welcoming another war as a means to an end, we don't know. Many of them are rightfully suspected of being willing to take the final step.

Mr. Roosevelt believes Great Britain's next war is our next war. If France has to march its troops, the United States must go to its aid. He doesn't feel free to say publicly that we must fight, but he does say that we must take sides. We sold goods to France and Great Britain in the world war, making a pretense then of neutrality, and were soon told that we were derelict in our duty. We hadn't officially conceded then that it was our war, although the seaboard colonials were saying so.

When Mr. Wilson said a nation could be too proud to fight the contemptuous jibes which came from over the water got under nearly every American skin. We were maneuvered into an impossible position by people who wanted us precisely where they then had us. Now, if Mr. Roosevelt had his way, we would begin with no pretense of neutrality. He has already destroyed that. He has been in a verbal war, particularly with Hitler, for two years. The Germans say he is the most bellicose chief in the world.

Congress has acted for peace. We are by no means safe, but we have not declared our belligerency.

Editorial of the Day

LESSON IN DIVISION.

[Birmingham (Ala.) Age-Herald.]

Haygood Paterson, Alabama's commissioner of agriculture, has wired officials of Wisconsin, pleading that the western state remove its taxes and licenses on oleomargarine and salad oils. The telegram, addressed to the governor and the chairman of the legislative agricultural committee, asked Wisconsin to "give us an even break."

Commissioner Paterson let the Wisconsin officials know that he hoped "your assembly will take down this fence and admit the south into the full sisterhood of states." This, of course, is merely a plea from a state that produces much of the cottonseed oil products that are practically barred from Wisconsin by the high "tariffs."

Will the time ever come when it will be necessary for the state of Alabama to send an ambassador to the state of Wisconsin? Will the time ever come when the United States of America, acting as forty-eight petty and selfish dukedoms, must carry on diplomatic negotiations even as the small European states?

Should the south, resentful of the Wisconsin tarif on cottonseed products, retaliate against Wisconsin butter and cheese no good purpose would be served. Wisconsin farmers would lose business, but none would profit from the move. Yet Wisconsin is inviting just such another foolish movement in what could develop into a bitter trade war between the states.

Free trade must be maintained between the states. Otherwise the American states will remain united only in name.

LITERARY FOOTPRINTS.

The town of Danville, Ky., places on its main street a marker that looks like a parking sign but reads:

"Site of the birthplace of Theodore O'Hara, author of 'The Bivouac of the Dead'." [You will find this poem in every anthology of American verse.]

This caused us to wonder about Chicago's literary shrines or tablets, and for the life of us we could remember only one—on a Clarendon avenue flat building, near Montrose avenue, site of the modest home which Eugene Field called his "Sabine farm."

This city has been a fermenting place for creative writing, and back in the 1920s H. L. Mencken went out on a limb by calling it "the literary capital of the nation." But has it produced an author, other than Field, whose reputation is so strongly enduring that it deserves a bronze memorial? We shall have to wait another hundred years, perhaps, to find out.

There was a man who worked for the ages, but he does not belong to literature. He was a compiler of historical data, and the massive tomes that he produced are famous under his last name. We speak of "Andreas" as casually as we speak of certain classic dramas as "Shakespeare." But few citizens of today know anything more about Alfred T. Andreas than that he wrote a "History of Chicago," which is much used in newspaper offices.

If you insist on literary shrines, however, we can mention two houses whose carpets have seen more hoofmarks of the writing clan than any others in town. The addresses are 2970 Ellis [formerly Groveland] avenue, and 1244 North State street. Here were salons in the highest tradition of the literary life. The former house was the residence, from about 1895 to 1930, of the late Mrs. William Vaughn Moody [Harriet C. Brainard]. The latter is the home of Mrs. Kellogg [Janet] Fairbank.

VARIATION ON A MOTTO.

(See Northwestern university's seal and anthem.)

On your shield, good Doctor Scott
(As on your campus—mark you, sirrah!),
You frame a question, do you not:
You're asking "Quaecumque sunt vera"?

Not who but what, you'd like to know,
Is this completely charming menace
Who makes the heart and optics glow,
Who holds and plays life's major tenace.

Sugar, spice and all that's nice,
A dash of Loy, a touch of Hera,
Soft as jello, hard as ice,
A hoyden goddess, sir, is Vera.

Long before the sexes might
Co-educationally share a
Seat of learning, man sought light
On just what sort of what is Vera.

Chicago's Most Famous Village.

While speaking of bygone towns within Chicago, let us not forget the most famous of them all—the old village of Hyde Park.

Served by over half a dozen railroads, daily Goodrich commutation steamers, a steam dummy line, the Ewing avenue horse railway, and later the city railway's cable trains, with its own police and fire departments, gas and water works, it laid down the law for the south half of Cleaverville [later Oakland], for Kenwood, Woodlawn, Grand Crossing, South Chicago, and Pullman. Its corporate limits, extending from 39th to 138th street, from State street to the lake and state line, inclosed some forty-seven square miles, almost twice the area of Chicago itself.

In here came La Salle in 1680. It holds the site of forgotten Fort Miami, and saw the revolutionary "battle of South Chicago." Paul Cornell gave it its name in the '50s when he subdivided his estate and agreed to pay the new Illinois Central railroad the difference between operating expense and income of the lone suburban local, ancestor of the speedy long electrics of modern time.

Our Most Modest President.

Regarding Jefferson's epitaph, in quotation marks [July 15]: Jefferson wrote his own epitaph, but the mystery is not why he did this, but why he omitted the fact that he had been for two terms the President of the United States. The epitaph reads: "Here lies buried Thomas Jefferson, author of the Declaration of Independence, of the Statute of Virginia for Religious Freedom, and Father of the University of Virginia." Evidently he valued his reputation for these achievements more than that of having been President.

MUSICAL ALARM CLOCK.

It sits bright-colored by my bed
And ticks away the night
And patiently awaits the hour
Of sunny morning light,

And joyfully it then chimes forth
A paan to the day.
In tinkling cadences it sings,
So little and so gay.

I wake and stretch and smile to think
What joy a tune can give,
That in its song a metal thing
Can laugh and love and live!

Opera in Chicago 54 Years Ago.

In the spring of 1885 the Chicago Opera Festival association built a large auditorium, seating 6,000, in the north end of the Exposition building on Michigan avenue and engaged Col. Mapleson to give two weeks of grand opera. Among his singers were Adelina Patti, Fursch-Madi, Scalchi, Emma Nevada, Giannini, Cherubini, and Nicolini. The first performance was given on April 6 and was "Semiramide," with Patti and Scalchi, the great contralto. The best seats were $2.50, and Chicago filled the house for every performance. The writer was one of the ushers and heard enough opera to last him a lifetime.

COLDS IN WARM WEATHER.

ONE can scarcely visit a well patronized summer resort without being impressed with the number of individuals who, within two or three days after arrival, develop bleary eyes, sneezing, and a profuse flow of mucus from the sinuses. No, we are not discussing nay fever, but the typical infection which is so likely to strike the newcomer because he is not immune to the prevalent organisms of a strange environment. Then, too, he is not accustomed to the colder evenings of the mountains or some northern latitude. The result is that he may become overheated during the daytime and chilled at night.

There is no special sign which distinguishes the summer cold from that which comes on during the winter months. In fact, many will wonder how this annoyance can develop when it is hot. The answer, of course, is that a nasal or throat infection is purely a question of resistance. With the midday temperature at 100 degrees or even higher, a drop to seventy degrees or lower may take place during the night. If a breeze [or draft] strikes the perspiring skin, cooling ensues with loss of heat from the body. This may be just enough to tip the scales in favor of the microbe invaders.

While the frequency of attacks rises steadily with the coming of frost, nevertheless the duration of a seizure at any time of year depends upon the care one takes of oneself. The probabilities are that the warm weather episode will hang on longer, because we are more likely to neglect it. Some of us may reason falsely that in July or August the condition does not amount to much and that it is rarely followed by pneumonia. While the tendency to lung complications is less, there is just as much incapacity and suffering. Furthermore, the malady is equally contagious, although it is likely to spread less widely because contacts are made out of doors and not within closed rooms.

Nothing can spoil what should be a fruitful health building holiday as one of these bouts, and it is well to take immediate remedial measures should one appear. These measures include bed rest with enough heat to induce comfort, large quantities of fluid—fruit juices, hot tea, lemonade, etc.—and a light diet. Nose drops of some oily preparation [one or two in each nostril] may be helpful in relieving a stuffy feeling. With children no material of this sort should ever be employed, as occasionally it is drawn into the lungs, where it may cause trouble.

Smoking should be abandoned temporarily. A hot foot bath is always in order, particularly if a tablespoonful of ground mustard is added to the water. While there is no harm in a dose or two of aspirin, an attempt to break up a cold with this substance usually is futile. Inhaling steam will ease a sense of tightness within the chest.

Ordinarily a day or two will close the incident, but confinement to one's quarters may be essential if the bronchi are involved and if coughing is at all persistent. If aching of the muscles and joints or a sore throat is observed, get in touch with the nearest physician. There is always the possibility that these fresh bacteria which one has taken on may grow vigorously and disturb the kidneys or other vital organs.

We journey to some distant point on a vacation to augment our reserves rather than deplete them. Overfatigue is nearly always the precursor of one of these assaults. We have tried to do too much. Away from the family doctor and the conveniences of home our precautions should be doubled. Go to bed early the first night or two and begin to explore the countryside only after you have had two or three days to become thoroughly acclimated. Taking on a sunburn quickly will be anything but beneficial.

As a cold preventive a weak solution of salt [one teaspoonful to a pint of water] may be used for washing the nasal passage; for rinsing the mouth and gargling the concentration may be two or three times as strong. If one rouses at night conscious that the bed clothing is inadequate, do not attempt to sleep until morning by curling up into a round ball, but hunt an extra blanket. If circulation to the extremities is poor do not forget to take along a hot water bottle.

IT'S DONE BY MANY.

Miss R. R. writes: My fiancé is 21 years old, 5 feet 9 inches tall, and slender.

With the exception of Saturday nights, he retires about 10 p. m., but for the last three months or so when we go to a picture show he invariably becomes drowsy and later falls asleep in the street car. He tells me that he cannot help it; that he really is trying to keep his eyes open.

What is wrong and what can be done to help him?

REPLY.

Many perfectly normal persons will doze in church, at the theater, or on a train. The sense of comfort and relaxation is conducive to slumber. On the other hand, a physical check-up is advised, as nutrition or elimination, or both, may be at fault.

NIGHT COUGHING.

T. W. writes: I am a woman 25 years old. For the last month or so a peculiar cough wakens me in the night, and for at least fifteen minutes I have great difficulty in catching my breath. The only time I feel this way during the day is when I laugh very heartily. I seem to be having this sensation more and more often, and it is very uncomfortable.

Is it dangerous?

REPLY.

The symptom probably is associated with nervousness. Some emotional upset no doubt is responsible. Many who complain of similar experiences are found to be beset with fears.

Are you securing enough rest? Tired nerves can be restored best with plenty of quiet and sleep.

If the incidents persist a careful examination, including an x-ray of the lungs, is suggested.

PROBABLY NOT THE CAUSE.

H. S. writes: After using yeast and iron tablets daily for about two months I notice that I have developed a large stomach, which I think is caused by gas. What can I do about this?

REPLY.

If the yeast is responsible, which seems unlikely, drop it. Reduce your total food intake, avoid constipation, and perform bending exercises daily. Two glasses of hot water before breakfast will help wash the stomach.

THE RIGHT TO CRITICIZE.

Chicago, July 21.—I am interested in the controversy raging at present about Gov. Dickinson of Michigan. It has come to a pretty pass in this land of the free when a man, and a governor of a great state, cannot express his ideas of right and wrong without every one getting up in arms and even proposing to recall him because he has the temerity to quote what the President's wife said about young girls drinking.

Why should it be an insult to Mrs. Roosevelt to quote her own remarks? If she has changed her belief she can publicly say so.

And as for Gov. Dickinson criticizing the drinking at the conference of governors: No one has said they had no right to drink if they wanted to, but don't forget that we have a right to criticize them; an inalienable right to our opinion and to the expression of it.

HISTORY'S VERDICT SLOW.

Evanston, Ill., July 20.—The fact that Mr. Roosevelt has signed a bill establishing a memorial to himself at Hyde Park may prove to be evidence that he will not stand for a third term. He probably senses the possibility of defeat at a reëlection, if nominated, and takes advantage of his present power to control legislation to his personal advantage. Barring the stupendous arrogance of such a proposal, the wisdom of it from the egoistic point of view is seriously questioned. The President's place in history is far from established.

History renders its verdict slowly and only after all the evidence has been heard. And in the present issue it is far from complete.

PULASKI FOR MILWAUKEE AV.

Chicago, July 20.—I am Polish and love everything that is Polish, but I do not approve of Crawford avenue being changed to Pulaski road.

Why not be fair to the pioneers and let it stay Crawford and rename some other street; for instance, Milwaukee avenue? If you walk down Milwaukee avenue you will hear the Polish language spoken almost all the way, and in that way we could honor dear old Gen. Pulaski. Let it be all the way from here to Milwaukee, which is also highly populated by Polish people.

STICKNEY.

WHO WOULD PAY THE TAXES.

Chicago, July 21.—Postmaster General Farley has issued a report showing a surplus for the P. O. for the last fiscal year. Also I see the postoffice trucks on the street without city or state vehicle licenses. Maybe this condition affects the amount of the surplus. [Who would pay all the taxes if the government was to take over all business and industry?].

Also I see the postoffice trucks operate without safety lane "stickers."

P. W. P.

AND GOING TO STAY OUT.

Chicago, July 20.—Mr. Roosevelt has shown his hand. He says he will have to call a special session of congress if a crisis arises in Europe.

But if a crisis arises, that is the very time the neutrality act and embargo will be needed—to show Europe that we are going to stay out.

WOULD TAX TRAVEL.

Chicago, July 20.—A welcome form of national income which would help American business and keep much of our money at home would be a tax on foreign travel, with the possible exception of travel within the Americas.

LESLIE L. LINICK.

WHO'S THE "BUSINESS MAN?"

Chicago, July 21.—In radio addresses and press conferences Mr. Roosevelt has repeatedly referred to conversations he claims to have had with prominent business men—but he neglects to tell us who the business men are. Today he describes a chat with one who agreed with the President that the senate's neutrality action probably cut short a nice business boom.

Please, Mr. President, let's have the name and address of this prominent business man who agrees with you. Some of us saps who are fed up on that kind of propaganda would like to write a letter to Mr. Business Man, who does not exist, and tell him how crazy we think he is to believe that we are crazy enough to believe such rot.

EXAMINATION A "PHONY"?

Chicago July 20.—We are two young men who, a year ago, took civil service examinations held to fill vacancies in the bureau of streets.

Having had no information regarding these examinations, we recently made inquiries and were told by one who's word we have no reason to doubt to forget about these examinations; that appointments to fill the alleged vacancies were made prior even to the examinations.

Are the thousands of young people who are trying for a start in life and in these trying times find that difficult, and those who took these examinations, having implicit faith in the integrity of our local civil service commission, to be duped by our politicians?

GOVERNMENT IN REVERSE.

Chicago, July 21.—I have just read the answers to the Inquiring Reporter on the government supporting the unemployed. Some seem not to understand the object of government; the people form a community and start paying taxes to support the government, but it now seems the reverse. Instead of the people supporting the government, the government is supporting the people. If every one would study how governments are formed and their objects, they could have answered the questions better.

NOTHING NEW UNDER THE SUN.

Chicago, July 20.—In today's TRIBUNE you have a London story of an English rifle match, where a marksman used an unusual position in shooting—lying on his side. May I say that in 1874 the United States rifle team beat the Irish rifle team by three points using this "unusual" position? It is only used for long range shooting and very steady.

In fact, the back position in rifle shooting is mentioned in a book on the revolutionary war, published in 1785 in Dublin.

ANTON TRYKOSKI.

FROM AN OCTOGENARIAN.

Oak Park, Ill., July 17.—As an old time photo engraver, I want to compliment you on your color plate in this morning's TRIBUNE. What a change has taken place in the craftsman's art since 1887, when the writer first started from wet plates to the old "rock-a-by-baby" etching tub! Only octogenarians like myself can appreciate the advancement. The gentlemen in the departments that can turn out such beautiful work are deserving of great credit.

C. H. D.

IN CLOUDS OF DUST.

Chicago, July 20.—I cannot for the life of me understand why something is not done to oil or tar the stretch of road of approximately one mile running along the Des Plaines camp grounds and Northwestern Park forest preserve, from Algonquin road to the railroad bridge in the town of Des Plaines.

Surely if the camp grounds cannot afford to have this done it should be possible for the county to raise sufficient funds to have it done, in view of the enormous sums of money which have been squandered for road building for less worthy locations.

The dense clouds of dust which have been carried over the camp grounds and Northwestern park by the north winds during the last week have been unbearable.

LANDLORD AND TENANT.

Chicago, July 18.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—How many days' notice must a landlord give before he raises one's rent?

J. S.

A tenancy is "by the month" if expressly so agreed, or if the rent is payable monthly and there is no valid agreement for a longer term. Since an oral agreement for a year to commence in future is invalid under the statute of frauds, the tenancy under such an agreement is ordinarily by the month.

The landlord and tenant act, section 6, reads: "In all cases of tenancy by the month, or for any other term less than one year, where the tenant holds over without special agreement, the landlord shall have the right to terminate the tenancy . . . by thirty days' notice in writing." In 10 Ill. App. 626 it was held that "this section has no reference to the right of the tenant to terminate." Hence, the common law thirty days' oral notice by the tenant is probably sufficient, but we advise written notice in all cases.

The notice does not relieve the tenant of his obligation to pay rent to the end of his tenancy. There is no obligation to assign a reason for the notice.

The landlord's right to increase the rent is incidental to his right to terminate.

HENNEMAN CASE TO CLARIFY GUN TOTING CHARGES

Boss of Union Will Face Court Today.

Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan said yesterday that the state has prepared its case against George Henneman, boss of the painters' union, with the exception that eventually it may go to the state Supreme court for a new ruling on the procedure to be followed in prosecuting persons arrested on charges of gun toting.

Henneman, who was arrested June 27, is accused of carrying concealed weapons. He is to go before Judge John F. Haas in the Criminal court today for a hearing on preliminary motions.

The state Supreme court has handed down one decision which Henneman's attorney has announced he will cite at the present trial in an effort to have the charge dismissed.

1937 Conviction Reversed.

In 1937 Henneman was convicted of gun toting and sentenced to jail. The Supreme court overturned the conviction, however, holding that police had no right to search Henneman, and outlined the correct legal procedure in such cases.

"We have prepared the Henneman case in a manner that should meet with the approval of the Supreme court," said Chief Sullivan. "It is because of that preparation that we took the case to the Criminal court instead of going to trial in the Municipal court.

"We want a record made that, in the event of conviction, will go to the Supreme court. We are forbidden, under the present interpretation of the law, from searching a person suspected of having a pistol. But if lawfully arrested a person may be searched, and if found to be armed may be prosecuted for carrying a concealed weapon. We arrested Henneman as a suspect in a holdup that had just happened in the neighborhood. Then, after he was arrested, we found the pistol on him."

Crime Commission Asks Aid.

The Chicago Crime commission complained last week of the cumbersome procedure for prosecuting gun toting cases and called upon the bar association for aid in facilitating it.

"The statute against carrying concealed weapons must be considered ineffectual in dealing with habitual and known gun toters," a commission bulletin said. "It prohibits the carrying of a concealed weapon, but the courts have held that it is illegal for police to search any one for a weapon, except under certain circumstances.

"The time has come for a showdown. The legal minds of the city surely can devise some way of remedying this existing farce."

Tappan Gregory, president of the Chicago Bar association, said he and the association would be willing to do anything possible to effect the change requested by the crime commission. He and other lawyers explained, however, that changing the laws and the constitution is a cumbersome procedure.

Commenting on this, Chief Sullivan said: "If there is a conviction in this case [Henneman] and it is sustained by the Supreme court, maybe we won't need any change in the law."

LUSH WHISKERS THRIVING AGAIN IN TAYLORVILLE

Bustles Are Back for Centennial Fete.

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

(Pictures on back page.)

Taylorville, Ill., July 23.—[Special.]—Three months of beard cultivation has given a new and curious distinction to 400 men of this town.

Women and little girls are appearing in the bustles and bonnets of their forbears, but the prizes for picturesque appearance will go to the men when they attend the centennial celebration of Christian county and of Taylorville, the county seat. The celebration begins tomorrow.

Where celebration will be held.

Taylorville, now a city of 10,000, with flags draping the business streets surrounding its block stone courthouse, will stage a historical pageant, a parade two miles long, on Tuesday. Through the week at the fair grounds there will be horse races, stock and farm produce shows of the usual county fair type on a bigger than usual scale.

In Name of Advertising.

Policeman Howard Bullard, who chalks tires of cars parked around the courthouse, has become a stern character with the chin whiskers and mustache of a field marshal. Women now turn their heads when they pass Ed Antle, a city truck driver, whose blue eyes peer over a fierce red mane. Gaylord Jones, a locomotive fireman, has luxuriant black mutton chops, chin whiskers, and mustache befitting his first name.

A visitor finds facial grandeur in gasoline stations, in groceries, and soda fountains. Imitations of Lincoln, Grant, or Burnside are everywhere. The excess hair, surprisingly ornamental as well as amusing, has served its purpose of advertising a week's activities at the Christian county fair, marking a century of history.

This central Illinois county, with its coal mines and its bumper crops of corn and soybeans, is proud that many of its residents are descended from Kentuckians.

"There were promoters in those days just like there are today," said the van dyked C. C. Hunter, general chairman of the centennial celebration. "A commission under Gov. Thomas Carlin laid out the county from slices of neighboring counties and then located the county seat in the open country beside the stage coach road, where some land had been acquired.

"It was first named Dane county, after a congressman, but when he became suspected of being a Federalist the former southerners voted to change the name to Christian county after a county in Kentucky."

MARS AVOIDS SUN ECLIPSE BY MERE 34 MILLION MILES

New York, July 23.—[Special.]—The earth passed directly between the sun and the red planet Mars at 7:20 o'clock, Chicago daylight time, this evening. Were the earth big enough, or Mars close enough, the earth would have caused an eclipse on the planet at that time. What actually hapened was that the shadow cast by the world fell short of Mars by more than 34 million miles. So all it meant to the man on Mars, if there was one, was that a pin point of black passed over the face of the sun.

THOUSANDS HEAR CONCERTS BY 3 WOODS CHORUSES

Thousands of persons heard singing amid the beauty of Cook county's forest preserves yesterday when three choruses presented the sixth in the series of this summer's Sunday concerts in the woods. The audiences were among an estimated 100,000 persons who spent the day in the preserves for picnics and outings.

The Elmhurst Women's Choral club sang in Thatcher woods at River Forest. Helen Leefelt directed the singing. Harry Vernon and Adeline Zach were the soloists. The Drexel Park Presbyterian church choir sang in Dan Ryan woods at Western avenue and 87th street. Theodore C. Barg directed. Soloists were William Donaldson, Mrs. William Caughey, and James McEnery. A large crowd joined in community singing at Caldwell woods, Devon and Milwaukee avenues, where the Royal League Woman's chorus sang, directed by Sylvia Brydine.

The concerts are sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and the Cook county commissioners.

Paroled Convict Hangs Self with Socks in Cell

John Ritter, a paroled convict awaiting trial for robbery, committed suicide yesterday in the county jail. Ritter, who was 36 years old, made a noose of his socks and hanged himself from the bars of his cell. In December, 1934, he was sentenced to Joliet penitentiary for a year to life on a burglary conviction. He was paroled July 15, 1938.

Knoxville, Tenn., July 23.—(AP)—Swimming in the French broad river near here today, 20 year old Bruce Atkins called for help. His father, Elbert, 46, went to his rescue, but the youth drowned. The father became exhausted and called for his brother, Arthur, 40. Both Elbert and Arthur drowned before other members of the swimming party reached them.

BRITISH BUSINESS OFFICES SMASHED BY CHINESE MOB

Charge Japanese Inspired Series of Attacks.

TIENTSIN, July 23.—(AP)—Anti-British demonstrations in North China broke into violence again late today when Chinese demonstrators, whom British charged were inspired by Japanese, attacked British properties at Tangku at the mouth of the Hai river nearly twenty-five miles below Tientsin.

Dispatches reaching Britons in Tientsin said the demonstrators stoned the properties and entered them, smashing furniture and demolishing the interiors, intimidating Chinese employés and plastering the buildings with anti-British slogans.

The properties reported attacked included offices of oil companies and steamship lines.

The Chinese chamber of commerce in Tientsin received orders from the Japanese-inspired "supreme anti-British committee" to tighten the boycott of British goods.

Merchants were ordered to report all stocks of British goods. The committee was reported planning a general withdrawal of Chinese staffs from British concerns and the removal of all Chinese from the Japanese-blockaded British concession.

Warning to Americans.

PEKING, China, July 23.—(AP)—The Japanese-sponsored Peking municipal council has decided to warn Americans and other foreigners to display their national flags to avoid being mistaken for Britons.

Confident of Solution.

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

TOKIO, July 24.—[Monday.]—Having overcome the difficulty of reaching a common formula, English and Japanese representatives today opened their conference for solution of the Tientsin problems with confidence expressed by both sides that a solution would be worked out before the month-end.

By the formula signed on Saturday Britain recognized that abnormal relations exist between Japan and China and promised to halt such acts as may be to China's advantage and Japan's disadvantage.

Discussing the formula, the newspaper Asahi declared it will remain a mere promissory note until Britain has reoriented her China policy. Among other changes needed, if the formula is to be sincerely carried out, Asahi said, are British coöperation with the new central government of China about to be reëstablished [under Japanese auspices], reform in the international settlement in Shanghai and financial coöperation on Japan's currency programs.

Stronger Guard in Shanghai.

SHANGHAI, July 23.—(AP)—Reinforced police details today guarded the international settlement against recurrence of yesterday's terroristic outbreak in which an American and three Chinese were killed.

An especially heavy guard was thrown about two newspapers which were the objects of a pistol and hand grenade attack apparently because of their support of Chinese Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's régime.

Miss Pons and her husband, Andre Kostelanetz, arrived here yesterday. They were met by James C. BIG GUNS OF JAPS AND REDS DUEL ON MONGOL BORDER

Tokio's War Planes Raid Enemy Positions.

SHANGHAI, July 23.—(AP)—Japanese reported today that heavy artillery fighting had been resumed on the Outer Mongolian-Manchukuan border after more than a week of comparative quiet.

Military dispatches from the frontier said Japanese-Manchukuan and soviet Russian-Outer Mongolian batteries were engaged in a duel across the Khalka river in the disputed area southeast of Lake Bor.

Japanese warplanes were reported to have raided enemy positions east of the river because of indications of preparations for renewed invasion of Manchukuo.

[Tass, soviet official news agency, distributed a Russian communique which said 150 Japanese planes invaded Inner Mongolia and were driven back by 100 soviet planes on Saturday. Fourteen Japanese and three Russian planes were reported downed.]

The Japanese reported that the first death among newspaper men occurred when a fragment from a Russian aerial bomb killed Shigeru Satto, correspondent for Osaka Mainichi.

Occupied with Talks.

MOSCOW, July 23.—(AP)—Frontier fighting in the far east and negotiations for a mutual assistance pact in the west occupied Moscow's attention today on the eve of a nation-wide celebration of soviet Russia's first navy day.

British and French envoys, motoring through streets decorated with bunting and posters depicting a powerful soviet navy, presented new proposals at the Kremlin for the long-sought three power mutual assistance accord.

The conversations among Premier and Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov, British Ambassador Sir William Seeds, Special British Envoy William Strang, and French Ambassador Paul Emile Naggiar occupied an hour and a half.

Festival Singers

Allyn Hokanson. Madeleine Clark.

This evening, at 6 o'clock, is the deadline for the entry of Cook county residents in the Chicagoland Music Festival vocal contests. All signed entry blanks must be in the office of the festival headquarters, room 421, Tribune Tower, at that time. The office will be open until 6 p. m. and entry blanks may be obtained both there and at the Tribune's Public Service office at 1 South Dearborn street.

At previous festivals in Soldiers' field the winning man and woman vocalists have had piano accompaniment. This year, however, at the 10th Chicagoland Music Festival on Saturday night, Aug. 19, the victors will be accompanied by the festival symphony orchestra, directed by Henry Weber.

The first Cook county competition will be held for north side entrants Thursday night, Aug. 3, in the grand ballroom of the Edgewater Beach hotel. An admission fee of 25 cents will be charged spectators. Among those who already have entered the Cook county contests are Leonard S. Exum, 25 years old, lyric tenor, 2464 Geneva terrace; Ardythe A. Fay, 25, soprano, 5553 Glenwood avenue; Madeleine Clark, 18, lyric soprano, 609 Michigan avenue, Evanston, and Allyn Hokanson, 22, mezzo, 1013 Dempster street, Evanston.

The deadline for out-of-Cook county vocal entrants and those competing in the violin, cornet, accordion and baton twirling contests, and for bands and choruses, will be 6 p. m. Monday, Aug. 7.

105 COUPLES WED AT MONTREAL IN MASS CEREMONY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., July 23.—A crowd of 25,000 persons jammed the Montreal Royals' baseball stadium this morning to witness the mass marriage of 105 young Canadian couples, culminating a year's study and instruction under a one time Montreal newsboy who turned priest, the Rev. Henri. Roy. About 300 of the spectators were overcome by heat and overindulgence in soft drinks.

The grooms knelt with their brides and took their vows before 105 priests of the Roman Catholic church, while from a high altar near second base, the coadjutor-archbishop of Montreal, Msgr. Georges Gauthier, led the religious service.

The stadium was draped with flags and banners of the Jeunesse Ouvriere Catholique [Young Catholic Workers], the association founded by Father Roy, and to which the young couples belong.

The mass marriage was the high point of the second Jeunesse Ouvriere Catholique congress, which was attended by many delegates from the United States, including a party of twenty-six from Chicago under the Rev. James R. Keane, director of the international perpetual novena of Our Lady of Sorrows church.

AMERICAN NAVAL OFFICER ROUGHLY HANDLED BY JAPS

SHANGHAI, July 23.—(AP)—R. A. Baker, warant officer aboard the American gunboat Guam, was reported severely manhandled by Japanese soldiers at Hankow today and held for four hours by Japanese authorities before representations brought his release.

The reports received by American naval circles said Baker became involved in an argument with a Japanese sentry who allegedly attempted to strike him with a rifle.

It was said that the American resisted the sentry and that four other Japanese soldiers overpowered him and took him to a Hankow barracks.

Recent impartial laboratory tests point out which popular cigarette gives the most actual smoking. These tests were conducted by a well-known group of scientists and covered 16 of the largest-selling brands. The results:

1 CAMELS were found to contain MORE TOBACCO BY WEIGHT than the average for the 15 other of the largest-selling brands.

2 CAMELS BURNED SLOWER THAN ANY OTHER BRAND TESTED—25% SLOWER THAN THE AVERAGE TIME OF THE 15 OTHER OF THE LARGEST-SELLING BRANDS! By burning 25% slower, on the average, Camels give smokers the equivalent of 5 EXTRA SMOKES PER PACK!

3 In the same tests, CAMELS HELD THEIR ASH FAR LONGER than the average time for all the other brands.

There's luxury in the fine, delicate flavor and aroma of Camel's costlier tobaccos...there's economy in their unique, long-burning quality. Camels are the better cigarette that every smoker can afford.

HERE'S THE "INSIDE TRACK" on more cigarette enjoyment for your money, as "Ken" Frank sees it: "I judge cigarettes by the way they burn. I find that longer-burning Camels smoke much milder, cooler, with a more delicate taste. Look at the results of these recent laboratory tests—they show Camel's longer burning means the same as 5 EXTRA SMOKES PER PACK. That's a real saving. And Camel's rich, ripe flavor makes every puff a real thrill." Take "Ken" Frank's tip: Judge your cigarettes by the way they burn. Smoke Camels for smoking pleasure at its best...and more of it per pack!

Lake Genevans Clear Deck for 3 Day Regatta

BY JUDITH CASS.

CHIFFONS and organzas were fluttering on Saturday night at the Lake Geneva and Big Foot Country clubs, but starting the middle of this week there will be hardly a costume in sight in the Lake Geneva neighborhood that is not a practical sailing one. The reason will be the Inland Lakes Yachting association's 1939 Cub class invitation regatta, to be held Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday on the lake.

At least thirty visiting cub class boats are expected to assemble for the events. As each is manned by two sailors, there will be at least sixty young yachtsmen from other lakes competing for the handsome prizes the Lake Geneva Yacht club is donating. The club is giving a dinner-dance on Thursday night at the Big Foot, and there will be a number of other parties for the visitors.

The yacht club's sailing school continues to be popular with the very young. Some members of last year's beginners' class are in the advanced class this summer, and Herbert Taylor, admiral of the new subsub navy, feels certain that he has several future winners of the Sheridan cup under his tutelage. Among the youngsters learning the art of sailing are Lawrence Whiting Jr., Henry H. Porter IV., Barbara Wakeley, William C. Bartholomay, Sally Whitaker, Edward Vilas, Jean and Priscilla White, and Allan, Calvin, and John McKinlay III.

Tennis Enthusiasts Meet at Lake Geneva Club.

Tennis enthusiasts met for a buffet supper last night at the Lake Geneva Country club. Two of the outstanding young players are Miss Margaret Starck, better known as Bobby, Mrs. Philip T. Starck's daughter, and Nahan G. Osborne Jr., Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne's son. These two young people played in Milwaukee last week in the Junior State tennis championship matches. Miss Starck walked off with a silver tray as a trophy for winning the women's singles at the Lake Geneva club. She and Mrs. E. C. Robbins are the doubles champions.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Bartholomay will be leaving the pleasant lake shore summer colony this week. They are going west to sail for Honolulu on Aug. 4. The junior Albert F. Maddeners and their children, Nancy and Lowden, will be missing from the Lake Geneva scene during August. They are going to the Thousand Islands to spend a month at the summer home of Mrs. Madlener's father, former Gov. Frank O. Lowden.

The junior Simeon B. Chapins will be arriving about Aug 1. from the east to spend several weeks at Black Point, the summer home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bartholomay, and sister, Mrs. Osborne. Later the Chapins will be guests across the lake at the home of his parents, the senior Mr. and Mrs. Chapin.

Mason Phelpses to Sail for Month in Honolulu.

Mr. and Mrs. Mason Phelps of Lake Forest are sailing from San Francisco on Aug. 3 for a month's trip to Honolulu. Their daughter, Mrs. Thomas Schriber of Bedford Hills, N. Y., is visiting them with her son. She will be here until the end of the week.

Threats of war are not keeping so many Chicagoans from a trip to Europe this summer. Miss Helen Gurley and Miss Margaret Conover will sail next Saturday in the Mauretania to spend six or seven weeks in England and Ireland. They may fly to Paris for a week-end.

The Charles G. Littles and Miss Olivia Little are sailing tomorrow to visit France, England, and Germany. One of Miss Little's school friends, Miss Barbara Delano of Kalamazoo, Mich., will accompany them. The pursome will remain abroad until Oct. 1.

Mrs. William Scudder and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. George P. Braun, are sailing today to visit England, France, Norway, and Sweden. They will return Sept. 15. Mrs. Scudder's son, James Braun, will remain in the west until fall.

W. B. Hales and Family Sailing for British Isles.

The William B. Hales and their daughters, Misses Mary and Eunice, are sailing on Wednesday, also bound for the British Isles. Following a motor trip in Ireland, Scotland, and England, they may go to the continent before turning homewards.

Mr. and Mrs. Hopewell Rogers and her daughter, Miss Dorothy Counselman, are sailing today on a North Cape cruise. Miss Counselman will not return to Chicago before she goes back to Bryn Mawr college.

Mrs. Bentley G. McCloud and her son and daughter, Robert and Nancy, are spending two months abroad. Nancy will return to the Roycemore school this fall. Robert is a student at Duke university.

Disarmed.

It was this same boy, a visitor from the east, who, gravely observing the baby son of Prince and Princess Rostislav when he went to call on them, asked what the little prince was going to be when he grew up.

"A baseball player or a fireman," answered Princess Rostislav.

"Why don't you make a glamor boy out of him?" asked the lad.

Intimates of Prince Rostislav, who had only one name [in the days of the late czar whose nephew he is, he would have been identified as Prince Rostislav of Russia] call him "utka," or "little duck," a name they hear Princess Rostislav use. The little boy visitor mentioned above thus found his name for baby Prince Rostislav—"Duck Jr."

The Housewife

We've heard of a new use for a grand household cleaner we've mentioned before. Its pink powdered crystals will remove the most stubborn spots from painted walls and woodwork and ugly stains from porcelain sinks and tubs. It works like magic, too, on lamp shades and dining room chair seats.

But, more than this, it is excellent for washing silk hosiery, for it leaves no film and does not dull the luster. Only a teaspoon of the cleaner to a gallon of water is needed. It won't remove your nail polish. EDITH WEIGLE.

J. G. Shennan and Miss Rich to Wed in Fall

At a small cocktail party at home in Winnetka yesterday, Mrs. R. Joseph Rich announced the engagement of her daughter, Ruth Elizabeth, to James Grierson Shennan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Grierson Shennan of Hazelton, Pa. The wedding will take place this fall.

Miss Rich, who always is called Bette, finished at Miss Porter's school at Farmington, Conn., and spent a year abroad with Miss Stout's traveling school before making her debut in the winter of 1934. She is a member of the Chicago Junior league.

Mr. Shennan is engaged in business in Elgin. He is a graduate of Princeton university.

Betty Jane Ferguson to Wed R. L. Henry.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. Ferguson of Huntington, Long Island, N. Y., formerly of Chicago, gave a buffet supper party Saturday to announce the engagement of their only daughter, Betty Jane, to Robert Lee Henry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Henry of New York. Miss Ferguson is an outstanding horsewoman and is a regular exhibitor in national horse shows in the east. She was a champion rider in her teens and now is a recognized senior judge of horsemanship. It was because of a mutual interest in showing horses that she and Mr. Henry met, for he is a widely known exhibitor of jumpers.

The wedding is planned for September at the Ferguson home. Miss Ferguson is a graduate of the Cathedral School of St. Mary's in Garden City and of Scudder-Collver school in New York. Mr. Henry, a graduate of Pace Institute and the St. Lawrence university, is an attorney.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

It's awfully hard to convince most women with ailing nails—and we've been hearing from a lot of them lately—that any number of things might be the cause.

Diet, for instance. We know plenty of women whose diet is pretty mad. It's entirely possible that diet deficiencies can contribute to the "sickness" of your nails. Of course, you can have nails that break and split and peel even though you're a wonderfully healthy person, but we have a strong notion that very few people whose diet is right, whose digestion is good, and who get their share of exercise and sun have much trouble in this respect.

If you do all the external things you should do—such as oiling the nails frequently, using good quality polish and remover, or none at all; and, above all, refrain from filing the nails far down at the sides—and if the nails don't respond you must face the fact that the state of your nails probably mirrors the state of your health. Have a physical examination, a bit of business that is always a good idea.

Be fussy, in any case, about the care you give your nails. Make it a point to insist on scrupulously clean instruments and cotton when you have a manicure. It's fairly easy to pick up an infection around the nails, whether they're healthy or not. In most shops great care is taken, but occasionally you'll find a girl who is careless. Don't put up with it.

Wear rubber gloves if your hands are in water a good deal. Dry nails are made dryer by frequent and long immersion in the dishpan or the laundry tub.

Don't bite the nails or develop a nervous habit of flicking them against various objects, as so many people do. They're more easily injured than you might think.

But if nail health eludes you for too long, ask your doctor about it.

Good Morning!

It should be encouraging to us, as a nation, to note moviedom's trend toward portraying wholesome family life and the manner in which pictures dealing with such are received by the general public.

"Daughters Courageous" tells an intensely interesting, exceptionally farsighted story about a mother and and four daughters to whom returns at a most unpropitious time the husband and father who had deserted them some twenty years before.

Jim Masters had departed without notice, leaving Nan Masters to shoulder all burdens. At the time he returns, weary for the moment of wandering, the girls have blossomed into lovely womanhood, and their mother, who, somewhere along the trail has secured a divorce, is about to marry a kindly and substantial gentleman whose life's ambition is to make things easier for her and her progeny. Each of the girls has planned a future that entails expense and Sam Sloane is prepared—and glad—to be "angel" for all of them.

Enters Jim.

The girls decide on concerted defense. Nan, who has never learned to hate him, permits him to stay at the house. Sam, understanding her predicament, comes and goes as usual. The girls weaken and take up cudgels for their irresponsible parent, coddling him, and giving him their confidence—asking his advice which, in the case of Buff, the youngest, is very bad advice indeed.

For Buff has succumbed to fascination for one Gabriel Lopez, a strange, unsettled fellow—much the same sort of vagabond as is Jim Masters—and Jim says to Buff—"My dear, if you love him, marry him!"

Nan, realizing if Buff DOES marry him she'll be in for the same grind as was her mother, is distraught.

Sam Sloane to the rescue.

The story which could so easily have been resolved into melodrama, becomes lovely, honest homespun in the hands of the fine cast to whom it was entrusted. The things that happen, you feel could happen to any family. Big dramatic scenes are so simply and sincerely acted that they are always undercurrents—never breaks and foam. There's direction as IS direction in this picture!

Don't I. "EVER get tired of going to the movies?"

Gee, NO!

Children Rush for Invitations to Film Party

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Tribune Charities, Inc.]

It didn't take you boys and girls long to spot the good news in yesterday's TRIBUNE, did it?

My desk is already piled high with letters from children who are anxious to come to my next party. I don't blame you for not waiting a minute to get in your bid for an invitation. Who wouldn't want to see Mickey Rooney's latest picture. The film, which is all about your friend Andy Hardy, is at the United Artists theater, and 50 boys and 50 girls will see it there with me on Aug. 3.

If you'd like to be one of that group, you still have plenty of time to send me your letter telling why you'd like to come.

On Thursday I'm going to select the youngsters who seem to want most to come, and if you can write a letter which will convince me that you'll just have to be invited, maybe you'll see your name listed with the winners in next Sunday's TRIBUNE.

Any boy or girl is eligible to try for an invitation. If you want to see "Andy Hardy Gets Spring Fever" with me you must remember to include three items in your letter: your full name, your address, and your age. You must also write the letter yourself, and you may not ask for invitations for other children.

The address is Sally Joy Brown, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Chicago.

Good-bye To Vienna

By Olga L. Rosmanith

(Copyright: 1939: By News Syndicate Company, Inc.)

SYNOPSIS.

An American girl and her Viennese sweetheart, Franz Gruenwald, in a café in Vienna hear a radio announcement of Hitler's entry into Austria. The girl, Marian Taylor, has been staying in Franz's home, studying voice. Franz fears for his foster father, Prof. von Plasy, author of a recent anti-Nazi book. He refuses to flee the country and leave his wife, Gisela, and son Johann, who has the mind of a child. Leopoldine, a pro-Nazi woman surgeon, in love with Franz, warns him to send the American girl home. Von Plasy is taken off to jail to die from shock. In order to take Gisela's money out of the country to deliver to her friend, Herr Wiedermann, in Riga, Marian invests it in rare stamps. Herr Speyer, the stamp merchant, guesses her purpose, but is sympathetic and asks her to deliver a picture to a friend of his in Riga, a Mme. Savonara Lonska. Franz loses his job. When Leopoldine secures one for him he accepts it for the sake of his dependents. In Riga Marian learns Herr Wiedermann is in love with Gisela and wants to arrange for her and Johann to come there. Mme. Lonska, she discovers, is a spy and that the picture from Herr Speyer was a message in code. Marian returns to Vienna. Gisela goes to Riga. She and Herr Wiedermann are married and he adopts Johann. Franz spurns Leopoldine's offer to be his mistress. Next day Franz is seized by the Gestapo. Leopoldine's brother Karl, a Storm Trooper, intrigued by Marian's beauty, offers to help locate Franz, though she doubts his sincerity. He falls madly in love with her, though she tells him she can love no one but Franz.

INSTALMENT XXXVII.

A WOMAN SCORNED.

It surprised Franz when he heard Leopoldine's voice outside his door, but the wearing nature of his solitary confinement made even her visit welcome. Surely it would now be possible to find out where he was and for what reason he had been arrested. A great hope flamed in him as he strained his ears to catch what she was saying out there in her unmistakable voice.

Marian must have gone and told her of his disappearance and Pola had interceded for him. This wild surmise so utterly out of keeping with Fraulein's Doktor's former behavior gained ground as her harshening tones indicated she was scolding some one for not being quick enough to please her in letting her in.

The only thing Franz knew about his incarceration was that he was not in a prison. True, the window of his room was heavily barred, but it was the room of a typical old fashioned suburban villa, walls and floors indicating that it had long stood empty. The narrow camp bed and hard kitchen chair were the only furniture. The window disclosed a view of a high blank wall beyond a tangle of neglected weed choked garden.

Franz had had time to think over that last interview with Leopoldine and his horror of her suggestion had been transmitted into a deep pity for her. She was a woman who could not be judged by ordinary standards. She had a form of savage genius which could not go with an orthodox moral nature. Her consciousness of her powers did not make her great, it magnified her ego. She felt contempt for others less gifted, less arbitrary than herself.

She considered herself above or perhaps outside ethics of any kind, even those of her profession. A dangerous woman, yes, but the danger was chiefly to herself. It would be impossible for her ever to achieve that fullness of living known as happiness, although she had so burning a desire for her own reckless version of it.

And she was in spite of it—or perhaps because of it—human in her own fashion. The proof of it was that she had found him and come to succour him herself.

"I'll tell you this—sooner than lose you I'll see you dead."

She burst into the room at last, bristling with anger. Franz stood up, literally dizzy with his hope. She took his hand—"Mein Gott, they haven't let you shave. And you're not eating either. You look a terrible mess!"

"I suppose they think it isn't safe to trust me with a razor." What banalities after endless hours of waiting for an explanation of his plight.

"They are brainless fools. They have just searched me to see that I do not carry arms. Well, there will be trouble for them when I get back to town."

She gave him a little push towards the iron bed. "Sit down. You look too weak to stand. I must see what they're giving you to eat."

She sat down on the edge of the hard chair herself. Franz was glad to sit down. He was light headed and his senses swam.

"You needn't bother about the food, thank you, Pola. It's all right. I know you have influence. Couldn't you do something to get me brought to a trial—or even to get me out?"

"So you're coming to reason at last?"

Hope left him as suddenly as it had arrived. He knew the portent of that peculiar little smile. In its place another flame rose—a body searing anger.

"Don't tell me you engineered this devilish business just for that!"

She saw his sudden whiteness about the lips and the tremble of his too thin hands. But this was only to be expected of him. "Of course I won't tell you that. In fact I'm not going to tell you anything."

He got up and stood over her—swaying with the weakness of his hunger and misery and fatigue.

"You did it. I know you did. You're capable of murder. In fact, it is murder—"

She laughed and pushed him down again. "Don't be silly. No one's going to kill you if you behave yourself. It's your own fault if you die."

She opened her bag and took out her cigaret case—offered it to him. He refused. His nerves quivered as she lit up and the fragrant smoke touched his nostrils. It cost him such an effort to refuse one that the sweat broke out on his forehead.

"I'm not afraid of dying. It's Marian. What she must be suffering. No news. No hope. How do you suppose she feels?"

"I've no idea—being unable to enter into female minds of such pigmy size." She tapped the cigaret ash on to the floor with her dark red finger tip. "But the usual thing with such a type, I suppose, as she is now haunting the night spots with another young man."

"That's unworthy of your brain, Pola."

Franz made a contemptuous sound.

Her sullen eyes raked him. "If you wish I will swear it by any oath you please."

"That would carry great conviction—from a woman who is proud of her disbelief in God."

"If you knew me better you'd take me at my word. What can I say to convince you?"

"You can't. Neither in this way nor in any other way."

At this she retired into herself to think, and Franz submitted to her long silence. Her body was twisted on the small upright chair, her right arm lying along the back, her knees crossed, and her graceful legs tucked under it. She wore a chic black silk suit patterned with white and a tilted black sailor hat with a blazing diamond pin among the flat white daisies.

She dropped the end of her cigaret and crushed it underfoot. Lighted another.

She said—"Men have lost women they imagined they loved, and recovered to find that life was still sweet."

"Why not? It's perfectly normal to recover from a flight of imagination."

She rose, stretched herself, and sat down by him on the edge of the bed. "Franz, you're being childish and difficult. All I want is to save you."

"Save me for what? And at what price? How can I discuss a subject on which I am so completely in the dark. You must know something or you wouldn't be here. Then tell me what you know. You got here, so presumably you know where you are. I don't. Tell me that to begin with——"

She shook her head. "I've promised not to. But that isn't important. Since you're unable to get free, what does it matter to you where you are?"

"You're right. It isn't really important. But you must know other things. What am I here for? When am I going to get out?"

Leopoldine crushed out her second cigaret and got up—perhaps a sensible instinct to remove herself from his reach.

She stood by the dismally barred open window. "Those are questions I can answer. You are here to be brought to reason. It depends on yourself when you are going to get out."

"Leiber Gott, you did it!"

"I didn't say so." She sniffed at the incoming air. Pulled down the dirty window. "There must be a dead cat in the vicinity. You'll get typhoid if you stay here."

He said bitterly—"That would please you I wouldn't doubt."

Her voice held a fury of feeling. "I'll tell you this, Franz Gruenwald. Sooner than lose you to another woman, I'd gladly see you dead."

WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER: Something to Look Forward To

Golschmann's Last Concerts Pack Ravinia

BY CECIL SMITH.

With ideal weather prevailing over the week-end, Vladimir Golschmann's two final Ravinia concerts with the Chicago Symphony orchestra were attended by crowds of unusual size. At the close of the Saturday evening program the orchestra sounded a fanfare in honor of the visiting conductor, and the audience rose to its feet in enthusiastic tribute. The Sunday afternoon audience, a little more sedate, none the less gave prolonged evidence of its warm regard for the St. Louis conductor.

Saturday night's concert was uniformly quite brilliant. Debussy's "La Mer," in particular, gave an opportunity to Mr. Golschmann to prove his excellent intuitive feeling for modern French music. The kaleidoscopic colors of the orchestra and the wayward harmonic and melodic sequences he unified into a clear, well paced totality.

Another especially appealing item in the program was Grieg's poignant little piece for string orchestra, "The Last Spring." The conductor lavished great care upon it.

If Mozart's "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik" and Strauss' "Death and Transfiguration" found Mr. Golschmann a little below the peak the reached in the other works, still they were well played and well received. Excerpts from two Russian operas—the prelude to Moussorgsky's "Khovanstchina" and the Wedding March from Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Le Coq d'Or"—rounded off a particularly happy program.

On Sunday afternoon Mr. Golschmann chose to finish off his engagement with one of the scores he knows and conducts best, the second series of orchestral fragments from Ravel's ballet "Daphnis and Chloe." This suite is perhaps the richest and most spectacular panorama of color any composer has ever created for the modern orchestra. Mr. Golschmann has given glowing performances of it here before, and yesterday's version of it continued to uphold his reputation.

Tschaikowsky's "Romeo and Juliet," which immediately preceded "Daphnis and Chloe," was played and conducted with equal virtuosity. This came almost as a surprise, and certainly as a relief, for Beethoven's Fifth symphony just before the intermission had been about the most ragged and listless performance the orchestra has given all summer. Probably its deficiencies must be attributed to a lack of rehearsal time. If so the debacle presented one more proof that the Ravinia festival should not continue to embarrass its guest conductors by refusing them enough time to get fully acquainted with the orchestra.

Oklahoma Conductor Makes Vital Music for Park Audience

The Grant park orchestra was directed last night by Jerzy Bojanowski, who is conductor of the Tulsa [Okla.] Symphony orchestra and who is known in Chicago for his work in the Polish opera, "Halka." His program for this concert—the twenty-fourth of the free lake front series—was largely drawn from the works of D'Albert, Glazounow, Debussy, and Strauss.

Mr. Bojanowski put a great deal of imagination into the performance—so much, in fact, that music which we had though all but dead came movingly to life. Those were fine examples of significant phrasing in the Glazounow suite. They gave the music graciousness and an indefinable human quality. In the "Cracoviacs" of Rybicki the conductor's knowledge of the idiom of Polish music resulted in several intoxicating metrical effects.

Soloist of the evening was Valerie Glowacki, who sang opera airs and classical and modern songs in a voice of good quality. She displayed too little reposefulness of style and her musical line was adversely affected at many points. E. B.

Relax for Few Minutes; Note Grand Change

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Be still!

In this busy, rushing world, how often are you absolutely quiet for five minutes? Yet a brief interval of complete relaxation will do wonders for your poise and charm. You may think you are often quiet, but try this exercise in relaxation and see how hard it is to be absolutely still for even five or ten minutes.

Lie down flat on the floor. Have a clock where you can see it without turning your head. Make yourself as comfortable as possible. Then, for at least five minutes, fifteen if possible, don't move a muscle. Just lie there and let your thoughts drift.

It is not an easy thing to do, simple as it may sound. You will want to change your foot to another position. There may be a tickling sensation in your left ear or cheek that your hand is just itching to rub. But be still! Don't move as much as a little finger.

You will be surprised at the peace that drifts over you. Your senses of sight and sound will be quickened. Because you still are yourself you will become aware of the world about you. When you arise and plunge into the turmoil yourself you will be refreshed, relaxed, rested.

The banana, once regarded as indigestible, now is fed to babies after the third month and often is prescribed in a reducing diet. One of our most plentiful fruits, the banana is so adaptable that it may be served as a vegetable or as a meat accompaniment, as well as in salads and desserts.

Bananas au gratin, as you'll find if you try this recipe, make an excellent substitute for potatoes at dinnertime.

Bananas au Gratin.
[Serves Six.]

6 bananas cut crosswise on halves.
2 tablespoons lemon juice
2 tablespoons fine, sifted cracker crumbs
⅛ cup grated sharp cheese
½ teaspoon salt
Paprika

Dip banana halves in lemon juice, then into crumbs, cheese, and salt, which have been mixed. Arrange in buttered shallow baking dish, sprinkle lightly with paprika, and bake in hot oven, 400 degrees, until brown, 15 or 20 minutes. Bananas may be cut into thick slices instead of in halves for this dish.

Then here's an unusual pancake made with bananas. Serve it with fresh berry sauce, with jelly, with orange sauce, or maple sirup. Good for lunch.

Banana Pancakes.
[Six Medium Cakes.]

½ cup flour
2 tablespoons sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
1 egg, well beaten
½ cup milk
2 bananas, sliced

Sift dry ingredients. Add milk to beaten egg and gradually add to dry mixture. Beat until smooth. Drop on a hot, greased griddle and slice the bananas over the cakes as they cook. Turn and brown the other sides. Serve at once, sprinkled with confectioner's sugar or with jelly or sauce.

French fried bananas, golden brown, are delicious with chops or with baked ham.

French Fried Bananas.
[Six Servings, as Meat Accompaniment.]

3 bananas, quartered
Juice of 2 lemons
2 teaspoons black pepper
¼ teaspoon salt
1 egg
Cornflake crumbs

Soak banana quarters in lemon juice, pepper, and salt for an hour. Drain on a cloth for half an hour longer. Dip in beaten egg, then in crushed cornflakes [don't crush the cereal too fine.] Fry in deep fat, 370 degrees, until golden brown.

There are banana breads and banana breads. This is a very rich and wonderfully good one, easy to make.

Banana Bread.
[One Loaf.]

⅓ cup butter
1 cup sugar
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup mashed bananas
1½ tablespoons sour milk
1 teaspoon lemon juice
2 cups sifted flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon soda
½ to 1 cup chopped nuts

Cream shortening and sugar together. Add beaten eggs. Combine banana, sour milk, and lemon juice and add. Add sifted dry ingredients, mixing lightly. Add nuts. Bake in greased loaf pan in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 45 minutes.

If Baby Goes on Train Trip, Take Supplies

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

You might, if you work that way, throw a few things into a suitcase and fare forth with your husband or some other adult, on travel bent. But not if the baby is going with you. That, to use an old one, is a horse of another color.

If his royal highness goes along by train or boat, by automobile or even by plane there's, indeed, no throwing of things into a suitcase. He is, you see, not yet firmly enough established in this world to stand being thrown off schedule with safety. So plan ahead for your baby's journey.

The first thing most mothers ask about is equipment. The following supplies may be packed in a small suitcase:

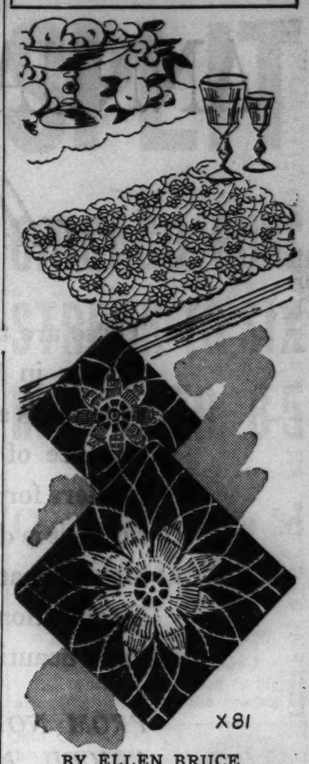
Small cans of evaporated or dried milk, jar of sugar, four to six nursing bottles, six sterile nipples in covered glass jar, funnel, strainer for dried milk mixture, teaspoon and tablespoon, small egg beater for mixing dry milk, vacuum bottle of boiled water, jar or cans of prepared vegetable purée, solid alcohol stove and tray or electric hot water heater, jars or cans of prepared orange or tomato juice, cup, and pint size utensils for heating food.

A separate bag or basket lined with rubber sheeting should be provided for the diapers, and with them may be packed a small enameled ware chamber. For a young baby a number of inner pads of soft paper or cellucotton should be provided. When one of these is soiled, put it down the toilet. Wet diapers may be rolled tightly and kept in the rubber bag.

For a long journey in hot summer weather a baby should be dressed only in a band, a diaper, and a thin outer garment. He should be barefooted. A short sleeved, low necked slip of white china silk or thin seersucker [cotton] can be washed out in the basin when soiled. Two dresses should be brought.

Regular hours for feeding the baby must be observed as far as possible. Do not give him cakes, candy, bananas, or sweet crackers to keep him quiet in the train.

Sunflower Motif Lends Novelty to Table Doily



BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Instead of using a large tablecloth for dinners which are neither formal nor informal, one might employ the sunflower doily as perfect for any type of table service. The lacy design with the flowers in the center is one of the easiest of all crochet jobs, and a minimum amount of time is required to complete one doily. Any pastel shade may be used, but the preference this season runs to white and ecru.

For instructions in crocheting the doily set in the sunflower design, No. X-81, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Lingerie in Latest Fashion

WOMAN'S AND MISS' PRINCESS SLIP.

Particularly under sheer dresses are camisole slips important. This is a year of extreme dressiness in underlayers as well as frocks. Presented for your approval today is a pattern that should help you stock up your lingerie wardrobe to keep pace with the fashion.

Sketched at the left is a version of the slip with square neckline edged with lace and beaded with ribbon. The same treatment is accorded the wide and sturdy shoulder straps and the hemline. Although etiquet and good grooming stipulate that hems of slips never should show, if, by chance, the hem of this one should hang below the skirtline the effect would at least be decorative!

The illustration at the right suggests a version without trimming. This tailored type is styled with a built-up shoulder, particularly in favor with mature women.

Both these designs make up well in lingerie silks and cottons, the latter being especially popular this summer. Sheer cottons are dainty and feminine. And this princess slip, however created, will fit like your skin.

Style No. 2628 is designed for sizes 14 and 16, and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, and 46 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material for the tailored version.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central station, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: Before last night's bridge session my friends and I were discussing the fact that the game had reached a stage where new or startling plays are virtually impossible. We more or less agreed that the writings of authorities like yourself have reduced almost all coups, squeezes, and so forth, to an exact science, so that an individual piece of brilliance is almost as rare as a dodo. In view of this discussion, a play made against me a little later seemed all the more magnificent, and I am hastening to bring it to your attention. This was the hand:

"South, dealer.
"Both sides vulnerable.
"Rubber bridge.

	NORTH ♠ 8 6 5 ♥ Q 7 5 ♦ 9 4 3 ♣ 5 4 3 2
WEST ♠ 9 4 ♥ J 9 ♦ Q 10 8 6 5 ♣ Q J 10 8		EAST ♠ 7 3 2 ♥ A 6 2 ♦ K J 7 2 ♣ 9 7 6
	SOUTH ♠ A K Q J 10 ♥ K 10 8 4 3 ♦ A ♣ A K

"The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 spades	Pass	2 no trump	Pass
3 hearts	Pass	3 spades	Pass
4 no trump	Pass	5 hearts	Pass
6 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

"I was South, and hereby admit that my last bid was a definite stretch. I knew darned well that I might lose two, or even possibly three, heart tricks, but, as we all do at times, took the bit between my teeth and shot the works. In my defense, I will say just this: I'll bet ten to one that I would have made that slam against almost any one else in the East position. Here is what happened:

"West opened the club queen. I won, drew trumps in three leads, and then led a low heart to the queen. It held! Now I did what anybody else would do under the circumstances, led back the heart five and, when East played low, finessed against the jack, hoping to drop the blank ace in the West hand. To my disgust, however, West won with the jack and, naturally, I felt he had the ace as well. Not that it mattered to me much, since I was down in any case. But when I discovered that East had deliberately held up the ace on my play to the queen, you could have knocked me off my chair! A moment's thought, of course, showed me the full beauty of East's play and it wasn't necessary for him to explain the reason. He knew that, if he took the queen, it would be impossible for me to return to dummy. Hence, if West had the jack, I would be unable to finesse for it, but would be forced to lay down my king and capture it. East, of course, could tell that, if West had the jack, it must originally have been doubleton. Hence, from East's point of view, the only hope of getting two heart tricks was to permit the queen to hold, thereby graciously giving me an entry for a losing finesse. Obviously, East's reasoning was not only brilliant, but sound. If he had taken the heart queen and returned any side suit, I would have been back in my own hand with no choice but to lay down the heart king. Thus, I would have been forced to make my contract.

"I am sure you will agree, Mr. Culbertson, that if East's play wasn't new, it was at least extremely rare.

"J. F. G., New York."

Not always can I echo correspondents' enthusiasm for plays made or witnessed, but in this case there are absolutely no strings on my approval. East deserves vociferous applause for a master stroke—permitting the heart queen to hold. It was a bit of deception that could not lose and had a wonderful chance of gaining. The beauty of it was that declarer was bound to fall for the ruse. He could not possibly know what East was doing. Hence, after the queen held, he had no choice but to lead a low heart and finesse against the jack. I know very few masters who, in East's position, would think of this play and execute it with the lack of hesitation so vital to its success.

CUBS RALLY TO WIN, 7-5; SOX, YANKEES SPLIT

BYRON NELSON'S 281 TAKES WESTERN OPEN TITLE

NATIONAL GOLF CHAMPION WINS BY ONE STROKE

Lloyd Mangrum 2d with 282 Total.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Byron Nelson, a shootin' man from Texas who can draw a bead on a golf cup like few others in his trade, yesterday won the fortieth Western Open golf championship, with a seventy-two hole total of 281, two under par for the Medinah Country club's No. 1 and No. 3 courses.

Byron Nelson.

Thus, on the record of the last five golfing weeks, 1939 is a Nelson year. On June 12, in Philadelphia, the 27 year old Fort Worth marksman, who is professional at Reading, Pa., won a three man two day playoff for the National Open championship. On July 15 it took Henry Picard thirty-seven holes to stop Byron from winning the American professional crown in the P. G. A. final in Flushing, N. Y.

Finishes With 70 and 71.

Yesterday, while all of his rivals were playing boy scout in the woods, water and sand of Medinah's famed No. 3 course, the cool, nerveless Nelson hewed to the fairways most of the route, and delivered on the greens whenever he had trouble reaching them. He had a 70 in the morning and finished with a par 71.

One stroke back of him at the end of the day was 24 year old Lloyd Mangrum of Los Angeles, dark horse of the show. The twelfth afternoon hole proved to be the eventual downfall of Lloyd. He buried a trapped second deeper in the sand, taking a 6 on the par 4 hole. Another bunker in the thirteenth prevented him from earning at least a tie.

Picard, the Hershey, Pa., pro who prevented Nelson from putting over a national double in the P. G. A., had his opportunity yesterday, but could do no better than a 284 and third place. Dick Metz, 36 hole leader and sharer in the 54 hole advantage, encountered his bad round in the final eighteen, taking a 285.

Picard Holds Vardon Lead.

Nelson's triumph, his first in the Western, earned him $750. Mangrum received $450, while Picard went away with $300, and Metz $200. Picard, however, still retained the national lead both in money winnings for 1939 and in the point scoring race for the Vardon trophy. Henry has won $8,477 since Jan. 1, while the Nelson books show collections of $7,423. But Nelson made a notable gain by yesterday's victory in the Vardon competition. The Western open carries 60 points in the scoring, giving him a total of 113 points against Picard's 423. The latter reaped 30 points for finishing third.

Ralph Guldahl of Madison, N. J., who had won the Western the last three years and was attempting to set a tournament record here by making it four straight, finished ninth in yesterday's field with a 291. The champion was never in position for one of the finishing spurts which distinguished his other three victories, and in yesterday's stretch run submitted only a 72 and a 74.

Wilford Wehrle of Racine, Wis., the pre-tournament amateur favorite, led the simon pure delegation with 294, climaxed by a final round of 70. Walter Burkemo of Evanston, and Mike Stefanchik of Gary were next with 302, while Frank Perpich of Kildeer had 303. Young Burkemo made the biggest hit of the day by shooting a par 71 in the afternoon while playing with Nelson and Tom Armour as his partners.

Deadlock at 54 Holes.

The end of the morning round found Metz and young Mangrum deadlocked for the 54 hole lead with scores of 209. Nelson meanwhile contented himself with a one under par 70 for 210. Picard chose the third round to shoot a 69 which was a masterpiece of scrambling out of trouble. It was the only time during the 36 holes that 70 was broken and left him with 212 going into the afternoon round.

Mangrum was in first with his 282, finishing two hours ahead of Nelson, who like Metz and Picard, was among the last threesomes in the field. Mangrum, after the disastrous 12th and 13th, finished well, concluding with a birdie at the 18th.

Pressure on at Last Hole.

Nelson, out in par 36, after he had dropped an eight foot birdie putt on the fifth to correct a visit to the weeds on the first, found a bunker on the eleventh. He evened that by holing a four footer for a birdie on the fifteenth. The 193 yard water seven-

HARBERT RALLIES TO BEAT KINGSLEY FOR GOLF TITLE

Colorado Springs, Colo., July 23.—(AP)—Chick Harbert of Battle Creek, Mich., won the Trans-Mississippi golf tournament by defeating Ed Kingsley of Salt Lake City, 2 and 1, in the thirty-six hole final today.

Three down at the end of eighteen holes, Harbert shot the first nine of the afternoon round in an amazing thirty strokes to go two up at twenty-seven holes, lost his lead and then settled the match with a birdie four on the 35th.

VOTES POUR IN FOR COACHES OF ALL-STAR ELEVEN

Five Will Direct Squad Against Giants.

BY ARCH WARD.

Football fans are losing no time going to work for their favorite coaches. Although the national poll which will determine the staff of five that will lead the College All-Stars against the New York Giants Aug. 30 opened only yesterday, returns already were arriving in great numbers as this edition went to press.

When voting has ended at midnight Aug. 5 the fans will have honored two coaches from the middle west—one from the Big Ten and one from outside the conference—one from the east, one from the south, and one from the far west. In their hands will rest the responsibility of developing the greatest array of player talent ever assembled in one camp.

Previous Head Coaches Ineligible.

Any college or university coach who was actively engaged as chief of staff last fall is eligible for the All-Star board except the five who have been chosen as head coaches in other years. They are Noble Kizer of Purdue, who was picked in 1934; Frank Thomas of Alabama, the 1935 leader; Bernie Bierman of Minnesota, who directed the 1936 All-Americans; Charles E. Dorais of Detroit, the boss in 1937, and Bo McMillin of Indiana, last year's winner.

You are entitled to vote for three coaches in the order of your preference. First place will count three points, second two, and third one. The eastern coach who receives more total points than any other from his section automatically will represent that area. The same plan applies to the south, far west, Big Ten, and middle west. Address your selections to the All-Star editor, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, or your nearest established polling places. There will be 333 newspapers and radio stations coöperating with THE TRIBUNE in the coaches' poll. The newcomer is the South Bend Tribune.

State Lines Forming.

There already are indications that the competition in this area will be along state lines. All important newspapers and radio stations in Tennessee are uniting in their efforts to elect Maj. Robert Neyland of the University of Tennessee. Wisconsin is solidly behind Harry Stuhldreher. In addition to a great chain of newspapers and radio stations, the Badger Alumni association will work enthusiastically to move Stuhldreher into the game as the Big Ten's representative.

Down in Indiana, where Notre Dame, Purdue, and Indiana have been football "enemies" for many years, they are forgetting institutional rivalries in an intensive "Boost Hoosier Football" campaign. Chambers of commerce throughout the state, newspapers, radio stations, and alumni groups are preparing to boost Elmer Layden and Mal Elward as the mid-

In the Wake of the News

BY ARCH WARD.

A SHOWDOWN within the Professional Golfers' association ranks is almost certain to come at the November meeting, because its president, George Jacobus, defied his committee and allowed Denny Shute to play in the recent tournament. . . . One report is that some of the professionals will break away from the association and form a new group headed by Jacobus. . . . Birmingham of the Southern association has an Indian third baseman, Woodie Arkeketa, an Otoe. . . . Bishop Bernard J. Sheil, founder of the C. Y. O. whose boxing champions tied Ireland's representatives at Soldiers' field last Wednesday night, will fly to France on the Yankee Clipper Wednesday. . . . He will visit England, Ireland, Italy, Germany and Holland before returning to Chicago Sept. 28. . . . Jimmy Crowley, Fordham football coach, plays 36 holes of golf daily during his vacation at Ephraim, Wis. . . . Dan Daniel, New York baseball writer, advances the sound suggestion that the managers of teams in future All-Star games be the leaders of the eighth place clubs, rather than the pilots of championship teams. . . . Then there could be no charge of favoritism, if a manager used a lineup made up mainly of his own players. . . . It was a matter of accident, however, that the manager of the American league champions handled this year's All-Star squad. . . . Connie Mack had been appointed, but was forced to withdraw because of illness. . . .

George Jacobus.

Sid Luckman.

Jack Dempsey received more than 3,000 telegrams from well wishers during his recent illness. . . . Sid Luckman of Columbia will be in the loop today to talk terms for a professional football career with George Halas of the Bears. . . . Whether he signs or not, you are going to see and hear a lot more about Luckman the night of Aug. 30, when as an All-Star he will try to beat the New York Giants in Chicago's sixth annual charity game. . . . Lou Nova is making personal appearances with the Nova-Baer fight film. . . . Marquette didn't lose a football regular by graduation last month. . . . Jimmy De Shong, Yankee pitcher, carries a portable phonograph and swing records wherever he travels. . . . Albie Booth of Yale gridiron fame plays in a radio serial, "Crime Doesn't Pay."

The Safe Route.

His tiny bare feet on the stones
Are cut and bruised and torn—
The first this year he's been without
The little shoes he's worn.

His little walk is slow and sure,
He picks his way about—
We have to help our little boy,
"His foots is all wored out."

The pebbles larger get, my son,
The stones much sharper grow,
Life's way is strewn with painful rocks
Where'er you walk or go.

Your feet will weary, stumble, fall,
You'll say your lot is cruel,
But wounds will heal, my little lad,
That's Life's unfailing rule.

So choose the way that takes you straight,
Though hard and long the trail—
Your feet are strong, my little man,
You can't, you will not fail.

History Doesn't Repeat Itself?

I don't want to revive the Wooderson he-fouled-me controversy and I don't want to be guilty in any way of undermining the hands-across-the-sea [you know, the outstretched palm] policy so auspiciously strengthened by the recent royal visit, but I thought you might be interested in a crack made by Finley Peter Dunne in an article, entitled "Mr. Dooley at the Olympic Games." Date: October, 1908.

Said Mr. Hennessey: "Do ye think th' English are good losers?"

Said Mr. Dooley: "Good losers, says ye? I'll back them to lose any time they start." —Wausau Wunderkind.

A Tribute to Jazbo.

Dear Arch: That poignant little poem, "Old Folks," by Jazbo of Old Dubuque that you printed several days ago in the Wake, has been lingering in my memory ever since—half crying itself there, you might say. In three eight-line stanzas he created as heart searching an impression as Will Carleton had to take three times as many stanzas to create in his "Over the Hill to the Poorhouse."

Jazbo's poem is all reticence—quiet, unforced, and as factual as the hands of the clock. Wilton Lackaye once said, "James, there are two kinds, pathos and puthos. One touches your heart, the other nauseates; and only a stub of the toe separates them." Jazbo did not stub his toe. His three stanzas are true feeling and true native art. Restraint is wonderful!

What's in a Name?

The name of the farmer from whom I take eggs is Will Lay. His hennery is at Girard, Pa., the birthplace of James Hart, old time president of the Chicago National league baseball team. I asked him if he had planned to attend the World's Poultry congress, which convenes at Cleveland, O., July 28 and continues eleven days. "Yes," he said with a cackle, "I think I'll run up for a day or two, if I can find a place to roost."

I was going to suggest that he take a rooster with him, but I was too chicken hearted. —John Kelley.

Repayment.

Until the day that sorrow came
I never guessed
The wealth of faithful friends
That we possessed.
From every side they came to help
In word and deed,
Instinctively they seemed to know
Our smallest need.

Perhaps a reason trouble comes to all
Is that we find
What friendship means—and how it helps
When folks are kind.
When sorrow comes to some one else
O, God, I pray
That I can be of service, too,
And thus repay.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 23.—The Giants, going into the ninth this afternoon had the whimsical idea they had ended their losing streak at eight straight. They were leading the Cubs, 5 to 3, and the champs seemed harmless. But a new freshet of Giant tears broke loose in the ninth when the Cubs made four runs, won the ball game, 7 to 5, swept the two game series and ran the New Yorkers' deep sorrow to nine straight.

Bill Lee at long last won his tenth victory although he was out of the ball game when the ninth inning bruising took place. He gave way to let Hank Leiber lead off the big inning. Hank walked and things happened fast thereafter to Harry Gumbert, the Giants' second pitcher of the afternoon.

Bryant Buns for Leiber.

Clay Bryant went to first to run for Leiber after Hank's walk. Stan Hack then singled to left, Bryant stopping at second. Billy Herman failed in two attempts to bunt then singled to right, Bryant scoring and Hack taking third. Augie Galan doubled to right, Hack scoring the tying run and Herman stopping at third. Jim Gleeson was given an intentional pass, loading the bases. Carl Reynolds sent a sacrifice fly to Demaree, Herman scoring and Galan taking third. Manager Hartnett also banged a long sacrifice fly to Demaree, Galan scoring and Gleeson taking second. G. Russell then struck out to end the rally.

Although Lee cherishes the victory that restored him to a .500 rating and gave him the first winning decision since the team left Pittsburgh on the first stop of this long journey, it was not an especially happy day for the big fellow. He yielded eleven hits including a homer by Bill Lohrman, starting Giant pitcher and another by Mel Ott.

Win Nine Out of Sixteen.

The Cubs did well enough on their six city journey, winning nine out of sixteen. Pretty good considering

CHICAGO RUNS STREAK TO SIX IN OPENER, 8-5

Champions Take 2d in Ninth, 5-4.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

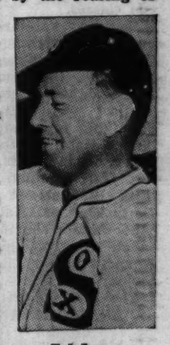
The White Sox, aroused to bigger and better deeds by the roaring of 51,178, who got into Comiskey park yesterday before the ticket supply was exhausted, blazed a path to their 6th straight triumph when they crushed the champion Yankees, 8 to 5, in the first half of a double-header. But the title holders, facing another defeat in the second battle, leaped into a tie in the eighth and then shot the winning run across in the ninth for a 5 to 4 victory.



Ted Lyons.

Ted Lyons, the 38 year old dean of the American league, carried the load in the first struggle to gain his season's tenth success and the seventeenth for the Sox in their last twenty-one efforts. The old fellow was a bit wobbly in the opening inning and was dragged down when the champions plastered him for three runs in the third inning, but thereafter he was master of the situation. Only two hits were made against his pitching in the last six innings.

Gomez Leaves Early.

Lyons' opponent at the start was Vernon [El Goofey] Gomez, the southpaw, but the Castilian was absent long before the finish. The Sox took his lead away from him with three hits, one by Lyons, and a double steal in the second inning. They took another lead away from him in the third, four runs blossoming from four hits, a pair of passes, another double steal and a couple of errors.

Gomez took his leave before this decisive eruption died down, and all that happened in the remaining innings was another Sox run which was aided by their fifth stolen base on the usually peerless Bill Dickey.

Error Encourages Yanks.

The Sox fixed up Johnny Rigney with a 4 to 2 lead in three innings of the second engagement, but he lost a part of it in the fourth. He hung on to the remainder until the eighth when an error by Eric McNair invited the Yanks to start something. They did and gained a tie. Meanwhile, the Sox had been slowed down by Bump Hadley, whom they had pummelled in the early innings. Then with the tie on hand, Clint Brown came in the ninth for his season's thirty-fifth finishing job, but the Yanks, instead of being docile, exploded a couple of hits and that proved all they needed.

The largest previous Sox crowd, according to Harry Grabiner, vice president of the club, was June 18, 1933, when a Yankee double-header drew 54,825. Fans were permitted on the field that day. The crowd gathered so early yesterday that the gates were opened at 9 o'clock. At 12:10 the ticket supply was exhausted. It was estimated that 10,000 were turned away.

FIRST GAME

A pass to Crosetti, a double by Rolfe, and an infield out forced Lyons to surrender a run in the opening inning of the first game, but the Sox more than erased this handicap in the second. Rosenthal beat out a bunt, Walker popped to Dahlgren and Appling sent Rosenthal to third by singling to center. McNair fanned, but as the third strike zipped past, a double steal was pulled, Rosenthal scoring. Tresh purposely was passed, but the strategy failed. Lyons ruined it by singling to left, Appling scoring.

COMPLETE TRIALS FOR TITLE RACES IN TRIBUNE SWIM

117 to Compete Sunday Off Navy Pier.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Fifty-seven boys and girls won gold qualifying medals yesterday in the concluding preliminary tests of the tenth annual Chicagoland 100 yard free style swimming races. Twenty-seven qualified in the races in Whealan pool. The others passed their tests in the California park pool.

The list of contestants for the championships, which will be decided next Sunday at Navy pier, now is completed. One hundred and seventeen are eligible for the ten championship races. All will receive letters of instruction this week and will be awarded racing numbers. All contestants must report at 1 o'clock and the first championship event will start an hour later.

May Have Semi-Finals.

Semi-finals probably will be held in two or three of the boys' classes, for the number of contestants in these divisions at the trials made it necessary to qualify more than in other age classes.

Beilfuss natatorium won more qualifying places in yesterday's meets than any other club. Madison Athletic club, the Medinah club, Lake Shore Athletic club, and Lincoln Turners were other organizations qualifying representatives.

Dick Upsall of the Madison A. C., who won the class A championship last year, qualified yesterday in the class B trials at California park. Betty Wyle of Medinah club was another former champion who qualified in an advanced age class. She will compete in the class E finals next Sunday.

3 ARRESTED IN PROBE OF DOPING CHARGES IN EAST

Garden City, N. Y., July 23.—(AP)—Two exercise boys and a Broadway singing waiter were arrested today by Nassau county detectives and Pinkerton investigators who believe they are on the trail of a gambling syndicate which doped race horses to better the chances of the one on which they had wagered.

The arrests came after more than a month of undercover inquiry at Belmont, Aqueduct, and Empire City race tracks and led Lieut. Christopher Wyer to fly to Saratoga where it was expected more persons would be taken into custody.

It was at Saratoga last summer that a major doping scandal broke during the August meeting, although authorities at that time never were able to trace the gang. They did determine, however, that a number of big betting coups were made.

Detective Inspector Harold King announced that he had taken into protective custody Allen MacIsaac, 19, and Harvey Keppler, 19, who exercise horses for various stables. The third person arrested was booked as Peter Panza, the singing waiter. He was picked up in Manhattan.

Keppler has been employed as an exercise boy by the Millsdale stable, whose trainer and part owner, Anthony Pelleteri, was suspended after the horse Sun Plume was allegedly doped. King said the horse was fed doped carrots, but that he spit them out and went on to win the race.

BEG YOUR PARDON

In SUNDAY'S TRIBUNE it was erroneously stated that Tony Ippolito, Purdue university full back of Chicago, had been traded to the Philadelphia Eagles by the Chicago Bears. Ippolito became the property of the Bears in a deal in which Philadelphia was given the right to take the Bears' seventh choice in next December's draft. He had been drafted seventh by the Eagles last year.

west and Big Ten choices., respectively.

Coaches of 1938 Team.

Last year's All-Star coaching board was made up of Bo McMillin, chief; Layden of Notre Dame, Raymond Pond of Yale, Harry Kipke of Michigan, and A. J. Robertson of Bradley. Lynn Waldorf later was moved in as an assistant.

Supporters of Waldorf are erecting a voting booth in Evanston's Fountain square and there will be others on the lake front, at the elevated stations and softball diamonds. Fans in the vicinity of Kansas State college, where Waldorf coached before coming to Northwestern, and Syracuse university, his alma mater, have promised to lend a hand. Sam Pohn, sports editor of the News Index, is chairman of the Waldorf campaign committee, which includes Mayor Henry Penfield, a former Northwestern player; Charles T. Byrnes, chief of the Evanston bureau of recreation; John Nagel, executive director of the Northwestern Alumni association; Frank Torgerson, president of the Northwestern club of Chicago, and Tug Wilson, the Wildcats' athletic director.

Player Poll Closes with Rush.

The player poll closed with the greatest rush of ballots in the six year history of the enterprise. Between 8 p.m. and midnight Saturday more than a million votes were brought directly to THE TRIBUNE. This figure does not include the hundreds of thousands wired from various centers throughout the nation. The final standings will be published tomorrow morning. When the tabulators concluded their day's work yesterday the total vote had reached 8,235,191 and the job was by no means finished.

WASHINGTON PK. TO RESUME CASH SELECTING TEST

The patrons' handicapping contest, offering daily awards of from $1,000 to $5,000, will be held again at the Washington Park race track. Announcement was made yesterday by Walter L. Gregory, president of the Washington Park Jockey club, who said there would be a minimum of $30,000 in prizes for the meeting, which opens next Monday.

The daily award will be $1,000. On Saturdays the award will be $5,000. Duplicate prizes will be paid in the event of a tie.

The contest will be decided on the first seven races each day. A participant is asked to select the winners of these races. He also must give his first, second, and third choices in the eighth race. These selections are used only in the case of ties.

In order to win the patron must name the first seven winners. In the event no person succeeds that day's award is carried over to the following afternoon. This continues, in the event there are no winners, only through Friday. On Saturdays the grand prize of $5,000 goes to the person selecting the most winners in the first seven races.

THE SWAN WINS CLASS C HONORS IN FOX LAKE RACE

The Swan, owned and sailed by Clarence Sills, won the Fox Lake regatta for class C boats yesterday, taking first in the afternoon race and second in the morning. Schatzie II., owned by Virginia Maypole, daughter of Senator George Maypole, and sailed by Charles Peterson, won the morning race to finish second in the regatta. Third went to Bob Weiland's Aloha, which finished third in both races. Twenty-two boats competed.

Dry Sue, owned by George Lauver and Kenneth Schmidt, and Walter Pearson's Dagmar won the Chicago-Corinthian Yacht club's races for snipe class sloops off Montrose harbor yesterday. Ten yachts competed in the two races.

St. Hyacinth Loses First Game in C. Y. O. League

St. Hyacinth, which had been the only undefeated team in the C. Y. O. baseball league, yesterday fell before St. Viator's, 6 to 5. Carl Hanson drove in the winning run in the eighth inning. Transfiguration won the junior title by defeating St. Mary's, Cicero, 11 to 4.

BYRON NELSON'S 281 TAKES TITLE IN WESTERN OPEN

teenth, problem hole for most of the field, was undoubtedly the one that won for Nelson. He was short of the green, at the base of the elevated carpet. His recovery landed twelve feet short of the cup.

Under the circumstances, knowing that Mangrum was in with his 282, and that Picard, at least, had a chance to overtake him, it was a real pressure putt. But the lean young Texan dropped it, then went on to get the par four at the eighteenth that won for him.

It was Nelson's fourth championship of 1939. Previously he had won the Phoenix open, the North and South open, and the National open.

Nelson's cards for yesterday's play follow:

MORNING ROUND.

Par—Out	434	454	534—36
Par—In	544	434	434—35—71
Nelson—out	434	454	444—36
Nelson—in	434	434	444—34—70

Dick Metz Blows Up.

The first afternoon nine was the setback route in Metz's progress, for it included two sixes that sent him out in 39, three over par. The first came at the fourth, where he drove the woods, and after playing out safely put his third in a trap. Then he took four shots to reach the 580 yard seventh, needing two putts. At the seventeenth he got a great four, removing his shoes and sox and going into the muddy water to make a recovery. He got the ball out, and then nearly holed out his third shot. He then three putted the eighteenth, finishing with a 76.

Picard, out in 35, one under par, needed a 34 in to tie Nelson, but could do no less than a 37 for a 72, trapping his drive and falling short with his recovery at the second.

AUSTRALIANS WIN LONGWOOD BOWL SINGLES, DOUBLES

Brookline, Mass., July 23.—(AP)—Adrian Quist, the Australian Davis cup doubles star, today became the first foreign Longwood Bowl tennis victor in fourteen years by defeating Gene Mako of Los Angeles, Cal., 6-1, 6-2, 6-4. Not since 1925, when Gerald Patterson, also of Australia won, has a foreigner been a Longwood victor.

After the match it became known that Mako was suffering from a cold that settled in his back and defaulted the doubles engagement he and Frank Parker of Pasadena, Cal., had with Quist and Jack Crawford, also of Australia, in the final round.

Mary Arnold of Los Angeles and William Murphy of Chicago won the mixed doubles by defeating Virginia Wolfenden of San Francisco, Cal., and Ronald Edwards of San Joe, Cal., 2-6, 6-1, 6-4.

Cubs' Rally in Ninth Defeats Giants, 7 to 5

all the aches and pains and the skimp roster.

Lohrman passed Hack to get the game under way, after which Herman shot a double play ball to Bonura. Scalzi held Bonura's throw to force Hack, but threw wild in his attempt to return the ball to Bonura, Herman safely reaching first. Galan singled to right, Herman taking third, whence he scored while Gleeson was forcing Galan. Gleeson stole second, but Reynolds filed to Ott.

The Giants tied the score in their end of the first. Whitehead singled with one down and Demaree walked. Ott popped to G. Russell, but Bonura was given credit for a single when he sent a grounder between Bartell's heels, Whitehead scoring and Demaree reaching third. O'Dea walked, filling the bases, after which Hafey popped to Bartell.

Lohrman Hits Homer.

The Giants took the lead in their half of the second when Lohrman knocked a homer high into the upper deck of the left field stand. The Giants made the score 3 to 1 in the third. Ott singled with one out, went to second while Lee was throwing out Bonura, and scored on O'Dea's single to right.

Larceny by Ott held the Cubs to one run in the fourth. With one out, Reynolds tripled to right center and scored while Whitehead was throwing out Hartnett. G. Russell singled to left and went to third on Bartell's single off the right field wall. Lee seemed to have a triple under way on a smash to deep right center until Ott, running a mile a minute, hopped into the air and pulled down the ball with one hand.

In the sixth the Cubs tied the score at 3 all. Gleeson opened with a single and, after Reynolds had fanned, Hartnett singled to right, sending Gleeson to third. Gleeson scored on G. Russell's sacrifice fly to Ott.

Tie Doesn't Survive.

The tie did not survive the inning. Hafey singled off Bartell's glove with one out in the home sixth and went to third on Scalzi's single to right. Ripple batted for Lohrman and Bartell made a nice play on his bouncer to force Scalzi, but drew an error when he threw low to first trying for what had seemed an easy double play. Hafey scored as G. Russell failed in an attempt to scoop up Bartell's throw.

The score became 5 to 3 in favor of the Giants with two out in the home seventh when Ott smashed his sixteenth homer into the upper deck of the right field stands.

Sox Divide with Yankees, 8 to 5 and 5 to 4

A single by Hayes scored Tresh, giving the Sox a 3 to 1 margin.

An error disturbed Lyons' calm in the third and by the time he readjusted himself three runs had scored. The error was Appling's juggle of Rolfe's grounder, after which Lyons walked Henrich. DiMaggio's bounder squirted off McNair's shin for a single, Rolfe scoring. A third strike finished Dickey, but Selkirk singled and Henrich ran home, Di Maggio taking third, whence he scored on Gordon's fly. This put the champions ahead, 4 to 3.

The Sox third opened with Krevich's out, but there was an immediate improvement. Rosenthal doubled to right and scored when Walker doubled to left. Walker took third on Appling's hit, which Dahlgren knocked down with his gloved hand. Dickey went over toward the Yankee dugout to take in a pop foul off McNair's bat, and for once in a baseball lifetime the Yanks showed a trace of panic.

As Dickey caught the foul Appling broke for second. Dickey threw to Gordon and Appling hesitated. Just about this time Walker set sail for home. Gordon threw to head him off, but the only man at the plate was Umpire Summers. The ball hit him, but this slight mishap didn't prevent Walker from scoring to complete a delayed double steal. The Yanks headed by Manager McCarthy immediately swarmed on Summers, claiming that McNair, swinging his bat in disgust over the pop foul, had hit

ALIEN DOCTRINES PERIL FREEDOM, ASSERTS HADLEY

Constitution Is in Danger, Wooddale Fete Told.

Residents of Wooddale, in Du Page county, were warned yesterday of foreign political doctrines which, they were told, are being offered by subversive elements to undermine the United States constitution.

Charles W. Hadley.

The speaker was Charles W. Hadley of Wheaton, former assistant attorney general of Illinois. He addressed the Wooddale celebration of the Du Page county centennial.

"There are many persons in high places in our government—and they have their followers—who believe that the citizen should be the property of the state," Hadley said.

Cites Forefathers' Stand.

"Whether these people are ignorant of the fact that this leads to tyranny, whether they believe that it will solve our difficulties, or whether they wish to profit by it, I cannot say.

"Our forefathers knew and we know that freedom can flourish best in a country whose officials are the servants and not the masters. We cannot be called unpatriotic when we criticize the mistakes of government. Patriotism is the love and desire to maintain the inalienable rights of the American citizen."

After Hadley's speech more than 200 persons signed a pledge indorsing the American creed of patriotism. Wooddale, a community which was founded eleven years ago, has a population of approximately 600.

Creed Hails Constitution.

The creed, announced by Hadley, is as follows:

"I believe in the constitution of the United States of America as the best instrument ever created by man to protect and preserve to him his inalienable right to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness; that he can earn his living and justify his existence better under government which strictly obeys this constitution than under any other the world has ever known, and that it is treason to the United States for any citizen, whether elected official or not, to try to change, weaken, subvert or abolish this constitution, except in the manner specified in the document itself."

Elmer Kurz of Wooddale was chairman of the committee on arrangements. Lee Daniels of Elmhurst was toastmaster.

Five thousand persons attended the Du Page county centennial celebration at Warrenville last night. The entertainment contest prize—$100 or a trip to the New York World's Fair—was won by Frank Hartzell, 23 years old, of Naperville. He said he would take the $100.

TIRES 10 FEET HIGH ORDERED FOR BYRD ANTARCTIC CRUISER

Admiral Richard E. Byrd's snow cruiser, the huge cabin on wheels in which he will explore and claim great areas of Antarctica for the United States this fall, will have the largest pneumatic tires in the world. This was announced yesterday by the Research Foundation of the Armour Institute of Technology, where the machine was designed.

Admiral Byrd.

The Goodyear Tire and Rubber company has been commissioned to build six tires, two of them spares, for delivery in August.

The tires will be so large that one wall of the rubber factory will have to be torn down to get them out. Each will be ten feet in diameter, more than a yard wide, and will have a thickness of twelve ply—over an inch—or double that of the ordinary heavy duty automobile tire. They will sustain a weight of 75,000 pounds.

In each wheel, weighing between 1,200 and 1,500 pounds, will be a special pumping device to regulate air pressure in the tire.

When a tire is to be changed a derrick will lift out a spare and drop it into place. A hydraulic arrangement on each wheel, ordinarily used to raise the cabin off the ground, will be used to lift the wheel preparatory to changing the tire.

American Fabrics to Open Merchandise Mart Office

The American Fabrics company of Bridgeport, Conn., announced yesterday that it will move its Chicago office to the Merchandise Mart late this month.

AN INCOME BOND.

Investors' Guide: I would appreciate whatever information you may be able to give me concerning the Denver and Salt Lake railroad 6 per cent income bonds of 1960.—J. B.

Answer: The income bond, which has attained some popularity among investment bankers and companies seeking new capital in recent years, is a financial hybrid. It is a cross between a bond and a stock. In corporate reorganizations the income bond has been rather extensively used. The reason for this is not difficult to understand.

This particular type of security retains the magical word "bond," arousing visions of conservative stability in the minds of potential purchasers, and yet makes it possible for a company to forgo interest payments if they are not earned. This may be done without the company's being thrown into receivership. Interest on an income bond is payable only if earned.

The income 6s of 1960 of the Denver and Salt Lake railway are secured by a general mortgage on the property, which has considerable strategic importance. Primarily a bituminous carrier, the road owns about 200 miles of main line single track running west from Denver through the Moffat tunnel to Craig, Colo. It is controled by the Denver and Rio Grande Western railroad.

The following table gives the amount of money available for interest on the income bonds, after payment of all fixed charges, in the last ten years. In each year the income bond interest requirement was $660,000. The third table gives the percentage earnings on the income bonds:

Year.	Avail. for int. on inc. bonds.	Per cent income bond int. earned
1929	$1,270,068	11.54
1930	690,247	6.27
1931	685,404	6.27
1932	416,446	3.79
1933	279,146	2.54
1934	453,424	4.11
1935	749,836	6.82
1936	607,455	5.52
1937	421,191	3.83
1938	385,846	3.51

Payments at the rate of 6 per cent a year have not been regularly maintained on the bonds. In 1933 the road paid only 3¾ per cent interest, in 1934 only 2½ per cent, in 1935 only 4 per cent, in 1936 the full 6 per cent, in 1937 only 5¼ per cent, in 1938 only 3¾ per cent, and this year only 3½ per cent. Payments are made on April 1 of each year on the basis of the preceding year's earnings.

The bonds are to a minor extent cumulative. If the directors fail to declare payable an amount equal to 75 per cent of available net income in any year such sums accumulate and are payable at or before maturity.

Net loss for the first four months of this year was $164,283, against $206,102 in 1938. The road had $55,717 available for income bond interest after the first four months, against $13,898 last year.

Public Wants Spending Cut, Poll Reveals

Washington, D. C., July 23.—(AP)—The National Association of Manufacturers said today a nation-wide poll of opinion showed there is a public demand for reduced taxes and less spending by the government.

The poll, the association said, was conducted for it by an organization of experts and represented an accurate cross section of the country.

It reported that:

To a question concerning government spending, 58 per cent responded that it should be decreased, 23 per cent said it should be let alone, 8 per cent said "it depends," 6 per cent said it should be increased, and 5 per cent had no opinion.

48 Per Cent Urge Tax Cuts.

On the question of taxes, 48 per cent expressed the view that levies should be lowered, 36 per cent that they should be let alone; 9 per cent said "it depends," 2 per cent said they should be raised, and 5 per cent were without opinion.

The association also asked what was the first necessity for increased prosperity. This brought from 36 per cent of those interviewed the reply that government should let business alone. Twenty-four per cent advocated increased production, 20 per cent said pensions after the age of 60 were necessary, 6 per cent favored improving conditions in the south, 5 per cent suggested unemployment insurance benefits, 7 per cent did not know, and the remainder had other suggestions.

Economy Gets Most Emphasis.

Commenting on the response to the tax question, the association said:

"It might be assumed that more people would be for lower taxes than for decreased spending, for taxes affect more individuals personally and directly. But the contrary is true, showing evidence that spending makes taxes and that you must cut spending before you can cut taxes. If the public had direct control, realistic budget balancing would start right away."

New York, July 23.—In a display of strength which left Wall street surprised, stocks last week advanced 1 to 9 points. The value of shares listed on the New York Stock exchange increased approximately 4½ billion dollars. The runup carried prices to the highest levels in more than four months.

Total volume of trading during the week was 7,537,970 shares, largest turnover since the week ended Jan. 28. It compared with trading of only 3,316,670 shares in the preceding week.

Broker Firms Short-handed.

The sudden activity caught brokerage houses short-handed, made the tape late intermittently, and was credited with saving the jobs of a number of employés in "the most depressed section of America." A number of vacations were reported canceled, but few employés were added.

Loft, the stock that came into prominence with Pepsi-Cola, staged a sensational rally all its own. It recorded a 54 per cent in volume during the week, moving from 13¼ to close at 20⅜ after touching a high of 21⅜. It was volume leader of the market with a 346,200 share turnover.

Chrysler Up 8½ Points.

A poor second in activity was Chrysler, which advanced 8½ points to 84 during the week. Spurred by optimistic reports from the steel industry, a leader in better business reports of the week, Bethlehem soared 9 points and United States Steel rose 6⅝.

Other active issues gaining 1 to more than 5 points included United States Rubber, General Motors, Montgomery Ward, General Electric, Anaconda, Republic Steel, New York Central, and Engineers Public Service.

A total of 120 new 1939 highs was recorded and sixteen new lows.

CHINA PRODUCES 180,000 OUNCES OF GOLD IN YEAR

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

CHUNGKING, July 23.—[Special.]—China produced 180,000 ounces of gold in the last twelve months, it was officially reported today. This total exceeds last year's production by 50,000 ounces.

In an effort to increase production the government has organized a special gold mining bureau, which is actively exploring gold resources and granting scores of new mining permits.

With the introduction of modern machinery it is estimated that gold production can be boosted several hundred thousand ounces within a year or two, adding materially to the national wealth.

Lumber Production Tops Seasonal Average for 1938

Washington, D. C., July 23.—(AP)—The National Lumber Manufacturers' association reported tonight that production of lumber in the week ended July 15 was 23 per cent larger than the 1938 seasonal average. New orders were 26 per cent larger and shipments 15 per cent larger. In the July 15 week 504 mills produced 236,926,000 feet, shipped 225,297,000 feet and booked orders of 236,741,000 feet. Revised figures for the preceding week: 527 mills, 157,985,000 feet produced, 172,244,000 feet shipped and 208,968,000 ordered.

JULY HOLDING BUSINESS GAIN MADE IN JUNE

Reserve Board Finds Trade Better.

Washington, D. C., July 23.—(AP)—The federal reserve board reported today that business made substantial gains in June and generally had maintained them in the first half of July.

The board's index of industrial production rose to 97 in June compared with 92 in April and May and 77 in June a year ago.

The output of factories and mines increased in June, the report said, reflecting mainly a sharp expansion at steel mills and bituminous coal mines.

Steel production rose from 45 per cent of capacity in the third week of May to 54 at the end of June and to 56 in the third week of July, the report showed.

Auto Production Rises.

Auto production, which had fallen in May, swung upward in June, a month when a drop is customary. In the first three weeks of July automobile output was lower, reflecting in part slower operations preparatory to the changeover to new models.

In June plate glass output rose "considerably." Production of lumber, which usually gains over May, was unchanged.

In the nondurable goods industries, woolen mills showed higher activity in June and activity at cotton and silk mills was maintained against the usual seasonal trend. Meat packing volume was lower than in May.

A number of important industrial centers reported increased factory employment and pay rolls from the middle of May to the middle of June.

More Mine and Rail Jobs.

There was a sharp expansion in employment at bituminous coal centers following the reopening of mines in mid-May and the number of persons employed on railroads increased more than seasonally from May to June.

A less than seasonal decline was recorded by department store sales from May to June. Reflecting this, the board's index gained from 85 to 86, which compared with 88 for the first four months of 1939. Sales at variety stores and by mail order houses showed little change.

The more than seasonal upturn in freight car loadings in June bore witness to a sharp rise in shipments of coal and smaller gains in movements of grain and miscellaneous freight, the report said.

Grain Prices Decline.

Prices of hides, silk, steel scrap, copper, and some other industrial materials advanced from the middle of June to the third week of July, while some farm products, particularly grains, declined. Prices of most other commodities showed little change.

The report called attention to indications of a smaller wheat crop, a drop of one-third in cotton acreage and a "record" tobacco crop. Most other crops are generally larger than average.

Total loans and investments of member banks in 101 leading cities continued to increase in the four weeks ended July 12, reflecting largely purchases of United States government securities. Open market money rates showed little change.

STEEL OUTPUT MAY BE 60% FOR SEVERAL WEEKS

The nation's steel operating rate should hold close to 60 per cent of capacity for the next several weeks, the magazine Steel said yesterday in its weekly review of the industry.

Improved demand is strengthening prices on some items, the survey said.

The scrap composite price advanced 12 cents to $14.87 per ton, the highest since early April. A year ago the composite was at $13.50.

A survey conducted by Steel on the change made in the basing point system over a year ago when the "Pittsburgh plus" practice was dropped, brought replies from only 13 per cent of steel customers indicating their competitive position in industry had been weakened by the change.

Nineteen per cent reported their position improved and the others said they could see little, if any difference. The survey found that 51 per cent of steel buyers favor the new system, under which prices at new base centers are established at the same level as Pittsburgh prices.

200 MILLION NOTE ISSUE OF CREDIT AGENCY OFFERED

Washington, D. C., July 23.—(AP)—Secretary Morgenthau today announced the offering of $200,000,000 of Commodity Credit corporation notes, at par and accrued interest. The notes will be issued in denominations of $1,000, $5,000, $10,000, and $100,000.

The notes, offered by the treasury on behalf of the corporation, will mature in two years and have a coupon rate of ⅝ per cent.

Proceeds from the sale of the notes will be used to take up crop loans from banks which do not want to renew after the July 31 expiration of one year term of loans.

HOUSING COUNCIL URGES REVISION OF ZONING LAW

Chicago's zoning ordinance should be revised by experts, and all proposed amendments should be submitted to the new Chicago Plan commission for consideration, a report of the Metropolitan Housing council said yesterday.

The housing council said there are three major faults in the zoning ordinance, which dates to 1923. They are improper districting, loopholes, and inadequacies, and laxity in administration, it said. Since 1923 the city council has passed 898 amendments, while the zoning board of appeals has granted an addition 2,439 exemptions, known as "variations."

Called Special Privileges.

"Many of these amendments were made solely to give special privileges to individuals," D. E. Mackelmann, executive director, declared in an analysis of the council study. "In some cases where amendments have been refused by the officials, they have been granted by the city council without regard to their legality or to their affect on the public welfare.

"Analysis of the amendments indicates, as might be hoped, that areas zoned for residential use are increasing, while those for apartments and manufacturing plants are decreasing. But unfortunately the greatest change has been in areas for commercial purposes, since the city is seriously overzoned for such use."

Restrictive Limits Lifted.

Only 28,000 feet of frontage had been changed to a more restrictive volume district, Mackelmann said. On the other hand, 1,300,000 feet have been changed to less restrictive volume, which means, he declared, opening the way to greater lot coverage and crowding.

The council also stated that many violations of the zoning ordinance were found.

The crowd of baseball fans in Comiskey park yesterday was the largest since the White Sox and the New York Yankees played a double-header on a June day in 1933. The attendance yesterday was 51,178, compared with the record crowd of 54,825 six years ago. The perfect baseball weather and the Chicago team's impressive record of victories in its recent contests brought out this huge throng to see the home team battle the Yanks.
